Patriotic Help Urged for Canning Industry

WOMEN, YOUTHS MAY BE FORCED TO TAKE JOBS

Labor Shortage Threatens Harvesting, Processing Of Foodstuffs

CANNERS MAP PROGRAM

Demand By Army Increases Importance Of Local Factories

Women, high school and college students, and in some instances even younger children, were given warning Saturday by the Ohio Cannery convention that they will be asked to roll up their sleeves and assume the job of harvesting and canning foods during the seasons which come in 1943.

The warning came at the concluding session of the association's meeting in Columbus where it was stressed that the shortage of male labor will certainly force women and children into the fields and factories to provide a sufficient supply of food for freedom.

Land Army Needed

"The only hope of getting foods harvested and canned this year depends on voluntary patriotic help of those persons who are not normally employed," R. C. Sharp, of Celina, president of the Ohio Cannery Association declared as the meeting reached its end.

Numerous Circleville and Pickaway county canners participated in the Deshler-Wallick hotel.

"We must depend on a patriotic land army that is to be developed," the canner said, "if we are to meet the demands placed before us for feeding the armed forces and the people of this and our allied nations."

Heavy Army Demand

Sharp said that the army is asking for 42 percent of the total output to be produced by canners during 1943. Only crops considered important to the war effort may be canned.

The convention was primarily a series of closed conferences between Washington officials and canning company representatives to discuss government requirements and needs relative to price ceilings and food production.

Clarence R. Barnhart, president of the Winor Canning Co., Circleville, was named a member of the board of directors at the closing session of the convention.

Other directors are: Fred L. Dutton, Canal Winchester; George S. Wenger, Sandusky, who was elected president of the association to succeed Mr. Sharp, who remains on the board; Newman Buckles, Bradford; Carl Hirtzel, East Toledo; H. G. Pressing, Norwalk, and C. Webb Campbell.

CHICAGO WIDOW SENDS SIXTH SON TO BATTLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—Six sons of Mrs. Elsie Tracy—all fighting Irishman—were in the army today.

The Chicago widow—probably the only mother in this city to have six blue service stars in her window—said "goodbye" to her sixth son, Walter, 23, this week.

Other Tracys now in the army are George, 29; Robert, 21, the youngest; Charles, 31, the eldest; John, 28, and Lamar, 25.

Mrs. Tracy was taking it on the chin. "Thinking back or crying or complaining won't do any good," she said, "this is something that has to be done."

UNIONS PLAN MIGHTY LOBBY

13,000,000 Workers Being Organized To Protect Roosevelt Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—A coalition of four of the nation's biggest labor organizations representing 13,000,000 workers was being developed today to resist what it called the conspiracy by "an unholy alliance" of "poll tax Democrats" and "reactionary" Republicans to sabotage President Roosevelt.

Formation of the labor body was announced by CIO President Philip Murray who said that the united legislative front "it still in the preliminary stage" but is acceptable to all four organizations—the CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods and the Farmers Union. Murray said that the coalition is entirely non-political in nature and the "general plan" remains to be worked out but it will give close consideration to each participant. (Continued on Page Two)

OFFICE WORKER DROPS BOOKS TO BLAST JAP SHIP

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Feb. 6—First Sgt. John Morrill, of Glens Falls, N. Y., today is about the proudest Sergeant in all New Guinea.

For weeks he had been begging his squadron captain to relieve him of his desk duties and give him a night over Rabaul.

Finally permission was granted and Morrill made the most of it. Acting as bombardier for Capt. William Thorington, of Montgomery, Ala., he scored direct hits on a 10,000-ton Japanese ship in Rabaul harbor. The vessel later was reported sunk.

in the government ranks on questions of internal policy.

In dismissing his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and eleven others from their posts, Mussolini was also believed to have seized the wrangle over internal matters as an excuse to rid the cabinet of bombers suspected of being half-hearted in their support of the axis cause.

Mussolini took over Ciano's duties as minister of foreign affairs and retained his former portfolios of interior, army, navy and air. The only posts not affected were the now honorary colonial ministry, the ministry of agriculture and the ministry of war production.

Grandi Also Out

Next to Ciano, the most important figure to lose his official head was Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice and one-time ambassador to London. Rumors have linked Grandi and Ciano with circles which would welcome a separate peace for Italy.

Political observers in London saw in the move an effort by Mussolini to rehabilitate his personal prestige which has reached a new low with the Italian people. Also he hopes to shock the nation out (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Treasury and congressional tax people who never gave a thought to pay-as-you-go, now are all experts.

No one of them ever came up with a pay-as-you-go plan previously to the Ruml plan but they all know what's wrong with that.

He built the better mousetrap and they're trying to stick his leg in it.

Ruml has now made a dozen appearances in Washington and looks thinner after each one.

He seems to know what he's talking about and the people seem to know what he's talking about, but the treasury and some congressmen are suffering from night blindness.

Not one of them has said "Let's see if we can make it work." When they aren't saying "it won't work" they're saying "we couldn't possibly get it in this year anyhow."

Where does an idea go to register? Certainly not at the treasury.

Thought for the day: Always put off 'til tomorrow what you could do today.

ARMY IN DENIM JOINS BATTLE TO DESTROY AXIS

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 6—Fifty-two members of Uncle Sam's newest army—an army in denim—went into the battle of food production today.

Recruited from low-production farms throughout the great middle west, the new "soldiers" are 16 and 17-year-old youths who have completed a six-week scientific farming course at the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Special exercises were held today to mark the graduation of the group, the first to complete the recently-established program. The students went to class eight hours a day, six days a week to learn the fundamentals of farming.

With the graduation of the initial class, 165 more boys were ready to take up a similar course, with a class of 300 scheduled to start March 15.

The course has included instruction on crops, machinery, dairy cattle management, meat animals, rural citizenship and democracy and was given under the sponsorship of the Federal Employment Service and the Farm Security Administration.

TROOPS, POLICE ARE RUSHED TO SPANISH BORDER

"Something Unusual" In Air, Say News Dispatches From London

CHURCHILL VISIT HINTED

Whereabouts Of British Leader Kept Secret—May Go To Portugal

LONDON, Feb. 6—Troops and detachments of police have been rushed towards the Spanish border, and Minister of War Antonio de Oliveira Salazar has left Lisbon unexpectedly for an undisclosed destination, the Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau declared today.

A Stockholm dispatch to Reuter's news agency, quoting messages from Lisbon as authority for the reports, said:

"Something unusual is happening."

These developments came at a time when the German radio is filling the air with reports that Prime Minister Winston Churchill plans to visit Lisbon. The Daily Mail today quoted the Berlin radio as declaring that "two British admirals, a general and two civilians had arrived in Lisbon from Cairo."

The Telegraph declared the Ankara radio reported that rumors persisted in Berlin that Mr. Churchill was about to visit a large neutral country in western Europe.

Reuter's declared that these speculations in Berlin were linked with another German report that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spanish dictator, would visit Lisbon tomorrow, accompanied by Gen. Francisco Gomez Jordana, his minister of foreign affairs, and several members of the general staff.

Portuguese officials were quoted by the Berlin radio as saying that a visit by Mr. Churchill would be a surprise but that it was "not impossible."

The British Prime Minister's last known whereabouts was Tripoli where he arrived Wednesday for a visit with the victorious British eighth army. He left Tripoli by plane early Friday for an unannounced destination, Cairo dispatches reported.

The purpose of a visit to Lisbon by the prime minister at this time was not clear to London observers. But there was nothing obscure about the welter of German reports.

Hitler and his intelligent agents were caught flat-footed by the announcement that Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt had held a 10-day conference at Casablanca, and they were also napping when the British leader appeared suddenly in Turkey for the meetings that strengthened allied ties with that country.

Spain and Portugal are the only remaining countries in Europe which he might visit with profit for the United Nations cause, and the Reich does not want to be caught unawares again. So the Berlin rumor factory is playing it safe by sending the much-travelled Mr. Churchill to Portugal—and then having the group of Spanish leaders go there to meet him.

STALINGRAD TO RISE AGAIN, SAY FIGHTING REDS

New Battleship Proves Worth in Target Run; Now Ready for Battle

ABOARD A NEW U. S. BATTLESHIP AT SEA, DELAYED—Blazing away with salvos from gigantic 16-inch guns, this new 40,000-ton (fully loaded) U. S. battleship today scored many hits on a target floating five miles away to prove she was ready to join America's growing fleet in the seven-seas wars against the axis.

Nine big guns peppered the target area with shells weighing more than 2,000 pounds each on this murky Winter morning after the nation's newest dreadnaught had made a 500-mile simulated battle run through submarine-infested waters.

PATHETIC ITALY WILL NOT QUIT, JAPANESE THINK

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—Italy will not withdraw from the axis even though she is "located in a very pathetic geographical situation," according to Japanese Foreign Minister Masayuki Tani. The official made the statement in an address before the budget session of the Japanese house of representatives which was broadcast by the Tokyo radio and recorded by the federal communications commission.

"As the war becomes more serious," Tani was quoted as saying, "we are confronted with the situation that meetings between Japan and Germany must be held more often, and at the same time I am putting this into practice."

"As for the relationship between Japan and Italy, it remains similar to that of the tripartite pact. The only difference is that Italy is located in a very pathetic geographical situation, and the enemy, taking advantage of the situation, is frantically working on propaganda to separate Italy from the other axis nations."

"However, Italy, under the wise leadership of Mussolini, knows that when Italy is separated from the other axis nations it means the defeat of Italy. I firmly believe that Italy will not withdraw her relationship from the tripartite pact."

Gunners officers asserted many "hits" on and around the floating target raft would have ripped apart an enemy warship, and they expressed confidence this ship was a match for any axis battleship.

The firing test revealed for the first time that this battleship was placed in commission months ago and that she was nearly ready to join the rapidly-expanding U. S. fleet. The battleship is listed as a 35,000-ton vessel, 40,000 tons fully loaded. Unofficial estimates, however, place her tonnage much higher.

Battleships of this class are the North Carolina, Washington, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Indiana, and Alabama, some of which already have been in action against the enemy.

Formidable Craft

This one, however, is most formidable because of improvements and additions made during last-minute construction work.

Despite her tonnage and the fact that she is 680 feet long and has a 108-foot beam, the man of war has a rated speed of 27 knots (over 30 miles per hour) and is believed to be capable of doing considerably more than that.

Red Ouster Plans Laid By Solons

House Moves To Cut Off Pay Of All Left Wingers In Government

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—The house, in its most rebellious mood in years, today planned to go down the line and eliminate all suspected Communists and members of alleged Communist-front organizations from the federal payroll—and keep them off for good.

The way for the action was paved after the house adopted a proposal by Rep. Dirksen (R) Ill., which was designed to prevent use of money appropriated by congress for the salaries of so-called "left-wingers."

Dirksen's proposal was passed as an amendment to the billion-dollar treasury-post office supply bill now being debated by the house. Specifically, it would prevent the treasury or post-office from using appropriated funds to hire any suspected Communist whose job was abolished by congressional edict.

Men Fired, Rehired

The Illinois congressman, charging that Communists dismissed by one government department were quickly rehired by another New Deal agency, said his amendment would prevent Communists from "playing hide and seek in government departments."

The house, amid a noisy, stormy session, also adopted an amendment which virtually abolished the job of William Pickens, a treasury department employee. Pickens was one of 39 persons listed by the Dies Committee as holding government jobs while they allegedly were in the employ of the (Continued on Page Two)

DEATH SENTENCE AFFIRMED FOR MAX STEPHAN

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6—The death sentence of Max Stephan, Detroit restaurant owner convicted of treason in assisting a German aviator who had escaped from a Canadian prison camp, today was affirmed by the Sixth District U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

U. S. District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle sentenced Stephan in Detroit on August 6, last, to be hanged on November 13, but execution of sentence was stayed pending the appeal.

Stephan was the first American citizen to be convicted of treason since the war began. The government charged that he aided Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, Nazi flier, who later was recaptured in San Antonio, Tex.

Defense counsel told the court that Stephan's association with Krug was limited to six hours in Detroit last April. Stephan gave Krug no money, but provided him with food and drink and bought him a bus ticket to Chicago, the defense asserted.

PEPPER SEEKS UNITED COUNCIL TO PLAN PEACE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Sen. Claude Pepper (D) Fla., today proposed creation of a council of the United Nations, with headquarters in Washington, to plan for the post-war world.

"I would put on the agenda of the staff of this council the questions of peace and the post-war world," said Pepper. "This would involve work on the international currency question, international employment, removal of trade barriers and a stimulation of public works."

The question of establishment of an international bank to aid in solution of the difficult problems of exchange was proposed, as well as exchange of technical data between nations.

The International bank, he said, would be needed also to help finance public improvements in the various countries of the world to aid in restoration of prosperity after the war.

NAZIS FALLING BACK ALL ALONG 500-MILE FRONT

Reds Advance Within 43 Miles Of Main Axis Base Of Kharkov

TUNISIAN FRONT QUIET

RAF Gives Huns Respite On Continent—Americans Bomb Japanese

LONDON, Feb. 6—Russian forces converging on Kharkov, great Ukraine industrial center and main axis base in south Russia, were within 45 miles of the city, Reuter's reported today in a dispatch from Moscow. The Soviet force which has driven close to Kharkov was said to have scored a 25-mile advance in the last 24 hours.

By International News Service Russian offensives on the 500-mile front in the south surged ahead today in new gains following capture of points close to the German 1942 line.

The mid-day Soviet communique reported capture of a series of strong-points south of Rostov and in this sector one Russian unit broke into a town on a rail line and captured a train loaded with German tanks and other military supplies.

(A Stockholm dispatch to Reuter's in London said the Russians have occupied Bataisk, only 10 miles south of Rostov, and the Germans were preparing to evacuate the city. If this report is correct the Caucasus gateway is within the range of Russian big guns.)

Take Two Towns

"On another sector our units captured two large towns. Two enemy companies were wiped out and we took numerous prisoners and much booty," the communique stated.

"In the area of Krasny Liman (midway between Kharkov and Rostov) a battalion of infantry was routed from an inhabited locality. Mobile units on this front, operating behind enemy lines, annihilated the garrisons of three towns."

"East of Kursk several additional towns were captured by Soviet forces and 300 prisoners captured."

Soviet columns pushing towards the shore of the Sea of Azov in the direction of Yeysk were reported within 12 miles of the port.

Encircling Kursk

Far to the north the encirclement of Kursk made steady progress. Russian forces several days ago breached the German 1942 line at a point only 22 miles north of Kursk, and today the southern claw of the Soviet pincers was said to be only 18 miles southeast of the city.

Other Russian spearheads were reported within 50 miles of Kharkov, and only 45 miles from Belgorod, a strongly fortified town between Kursk and Kharkov.

A Soviet special communique announced the fall of two more important points—Stary Oskol, a railway town 75 miles southeast of Kursk, and Izyum, 75 miles southeast of Kharkov. It was from Izyum that the German drive on Rostov was launched last Summer.

Another Russian force drove on 35 miles southwest of Stary Oskol to capture Skorodnoe, within striking distance of Belgorod. The Izyum garrison was surrounded and only a few escaped, reports of the battle declared.

Pass Strong Points

The victorious Red armies pushed on beyond the captured strong points and occupied additional towns in the areas of both Izyum and Stary Oskol.

Soviet armies in the Caucasus were reported nearing the Don estuary armored forces driving on Rostov from the north and west threatened not only to outflank Rostov but the whole German defense system in the Donetz basin.

The Germans have brought up reserves and resistance stiffened somewhat in the Kharkov sector, but have not succeeded in checking the Russian drives, said front-line dispatches.

For the first time in nearly a week that RAF announced no (Continued on Page Two)

Gunnery officers asserted many "hits" on and around the floating target raft would have ripped apart an enemy warship, and they expressed confidence this ship was a match for any axis battleship.

The firing test revealed for the first time that this battleship was placed in commission months ago and that she was nearly ready to join the rapidly-expanding U. S. fleet. The battleship is listed as a 35,000 ton vessel, 40,000 tons fully loaded. Unofficial estimates, however, place her tonnage much higher.

Battleships of this class are the North Carolina, Washington, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Indiana, and Alabama, some of which already have been in action against the enemy.

Formidable Craft

This one, however, is most formidable because of improvements and additions made during last-minute construction work.

Despite her tonnage and the fact that she is 680 feet long and has a 108-foot beam, the man of war has a rated speed of 27 knots (over 30 miles per hour) and is believed to be capable of doing considerably more than that.

Red Ouster Plans Laid By Solons

House Moves To Cut Off Pay Of All Left Wingers In Government

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—The house, in its most rebellious mood in years, today planned to go down the line and eliminate all suspected Communists and members of alleged Communist-front organizations from the federal payroll—and keep them off for good.

The way for the action was paved after the house adopted a proposal by Rep. Dirksen (R) Ill., which was designed to prevent use of money appropriated by congress for the salaries of so-called "left-wingers."

Dirksen's proposal was passed as an amendment to the billion-dollar treasury-post office supply bill now being debated by the house. Specifically, it would prevent the treasury or post-office from using appropriated funds to hire any suspected Communist whose job was abolished by congressional edict.

Men Fired, Rehired

The Illinois congressman, charging that Communists dismissed by one government department were quickly rehired by another New Deal agency, said his amendment would prevent Communists from "playing hide and seek in government departments."

The house, amid a noisy, stormy session, also adopted an amendment which virtually abolished the job of William Pickens, a treasury department employee. Pickens was one of 39 persons listed by the Dies Committee as holding government jobs while they alleged.

DEATH SENTENCE AFFIRMED FOR MAX STEPHAN

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6—The death sentence of Max Stephan, Detroit restaurant owner convicted of treason in assisting a German aviator who had escaped from a Canadian prison camp, today was affirmed by the Sixth District U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

U. S. District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle sentenced Stephan in Detroit on August 6, last, to be hanged on November 13, but execution of sentence was stayed pending the appeal.

Stephan was the first American citizen to be convicted of treason since the war began. The government charged that he aided Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, Nazi flier, who later was recaptured in San Antonio, Tex.

Defense counsel told the court that Stephan's association with Krug was limited to six hours in Detroit last April. Stephan gave Krug no money, but provided him with food and drink and bought him a bus ticket to Chicago, the defense asserted.

PEPPER SEEKS UNITED COUNCIL TO PLAN PEACE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Sen. Claude Pepper (D) Fla., today proposed creation of a council of the United Nations, with headquarters in Washington, to plan for the post-war world.

"I would put on the agenda of the staff of this council the questions of peace and the post-war world," said Pepper. "This would involve work on the international currency question, international employment, removal of trade barriers and a stimulation of public works."

The question of establishment of an international bank to aid in solution of the difficult problems of exchange of technical data between nations.

The International bank, he said, would be needed also to help finance public improvements in the various countries of the world to aid in restoration of prosperity after the war.

RAF Gives Huns Respite On Continent—Americans Bomb Japanese

LONDON, Feb. 6—Russian forces converging on Kharkov, great Ukraine industrial center and main axis base in south Russia, were within 45 miles of the city, Reuter's reported today in a dispatch from Moscow. The Soviet force which has driven close to Kharkov was said to have scored a 25-mile advance in the last 24 hours.

By International News Service
Russian offensives on the 500-mile front in the south surged ahead today in new gains following capture of points close to the German 1942 line.

The mid-day Soviet communiqué reported capture of a series of strong-points south of Rostov and in this sector one Russian unit broke into a town on a rail line and captured a train loaded with German tanks and other military supplies.

(A Stockholm dispatch to Reuter's in London said the Russians have occupied Bataisk, only 10 miles south of Rostov, and the Germans were preparing to evacuate the city. If this report is correct the Caucasus gateway is within the range of Russian big guns.)

Take Two Towns

"On another sector our units captured two large towns. Two enemy companies were wiped out and we took numerous prisoners and much booty," the communique stated.

"In the area of Krasny Liman (midway between Kharkov and Rostov) a battalion of infantry was routed from an inhabited locality. Mobile units on this front, operating behind enemy lines, annihilated the garrisons of three towns."

"East of Kursk several additional towns were captured by Soviet forces and 300 prisoners captured."

Soviet columns pushing towards the shore of the Sea of Azov in the direction of Yeysk were reported within 12 miles of the port.

Encircling Kursk

Far to the north the encirclement of Kursk made steady progress. Russian forces several days ago breached the German 1942 line at a point only 22 miles north of Kursk, and today the southern claw of the Soviet pincers was said to be only 15 miles southeast of the city.

Other Russian spearheads were reported within 50 miles of Kharkov, and only 45 miles from Belgorod, a strongly fortified town between Kursk and Kharkov.

A Soviet special communiqué announced the fall of two more important points—Stary Oskol, a railway town 75 miles southeast of Kursk, and Izyum, 75 miles southeast of Kharkov. It was from Izyum that the German drive on Rostov was launched last Summer.

Another Russian force drove on 35 miles southwest of Stary Oskol to capture Skorodnoe, within striking distance of Belgorod. The Izyum garrison was surrounded and only a few escaped, reports of the battle declared.

Pass Strong Points

The victorious Red armies pushed on beyond the captured strong points and occupied additional towns in the areas of both Izyum and Stary Oskol.

Soviet armies in the Caucasus were reported nearing the Don estuary armored forces driving on Rostov from the north and west threatened not only to outflank Rostov but the whole German defense system in the Donetz basin.

The Germans have brought up reserves and resistance stiffened somewhat in the Kharkov sector, but have not succeeded in checking the Russian drive, said front-line dispatches.

For the first time in nearly a week that RAF announced no night raids on enemy territory. But a Berne report said about twenty "foreign planes" were over Switzerland during the night.

Quiet In Africa
Action in North Africa was on a light scale following Friday's spectacular raids on enemy airdromes near Gabes, in south Tunisia, during which American bombers and fighters shot down 26 enemy fighters and damaged an equal number.

Enemy counter-attacks yesterday forced withdrawal of mixed British and French forces from a newly-won hill position in the Djebel Mansour area.

The fighting was described by an allied headquarters spokesman as "a small, local action of no great importance." The allied troops consisted of British paratroopers and units of the French Foreign Legion, the spokesman said.

Bad weather limited air activity over Tunisia, the communiqué declared, but on Saturday night the harbor and docks at Bizerte were bombed. No allied aircraft were lost in this engagement.

Missing Planes Return
The statement added that of 10 allied planes reported as missing yesterday, four have returned to their bases and the pilots of two others are safe.

Delayed reports of a Japanese torpedo plane attack on an American naval task force in the southern Solomons said 17 of the total enemy attacking planes were destroyed by our fighters and anti-aircraft fire of the warships.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land based bombers made widespread raids on enemy shipping and airdromes in the New Guinea area. Three ships totalling 20,000-tons were sunk or damaged in the harbor of Ambona, west of New Guinea. Two other small ships were sunk and a third damaged off New Britain island. The main enemy base at Rabaul was bombed for the seventh consecutive night.

FARMERS FROM POOR AREAS MAY HELP LOCALLY

That Pickaway county's farm labor problem may be alleviated somewhat during the next month was indicated Saturday by Cornell Copeland, Farm Security administrator for the county, and Turney Weldon, U. S. Employment Service office manager, when they announced that many farmers have applied for interviews with farmers brought to Ohio from sub-marginal lands in southern states.

The exact number of applications was not announced, but it is indicated that the number may reach 50.

Already three Pickaway county farms have obtained laborers from the Kentucky area from which numerous men have been brought for training in Ohio farm areas. One Kentucky family has removed here under the U. S. department of education and U. S. department of agriculture program, and others are expected to follow. The other two men employed have not yet brought their families but expect to do so.

Farmers living in submarginal Kentucky areas are being brought to Ohio State university and to Rio Grande college for training. After they complete their training at the two schools they are available for assignment. The FSA and Employment Service arrange for interviews, the farmer and the prospective tenant working out all other details of the arrangement.

Just how many farmers will be available for Pickaway county is not certain, although from all indications many can be used if they are obtainable.

The "reactionary coalition in congress" must be blocked in its intention "to ride rough-shod over any considerations of national welfare, war policy, national unity and health for war workers," the board said.

NEW DESTROYER LAUNCHED AS NEMESIS TO JAPS

KEARNEY, N. J., Feb. 6 — The destroyer USS Dashiell was launched today with the special wish that it be a nemesis to the Nipponese.

As the destroyer slid down the ways at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. the sponsor, Mrs. Robert Brooke Dashiell of Annapolis, Md., dedicated it to the destruction of the Japs. She is the mother-in-law of Capt. Thomas L. Gatch, who was wounded when the American battleship he commanded shot down 32 Jap airplanes in a naval battle off Santa Cruz Island on October 26.

The unidentified battleship was the first in this war to beat off and survive, almost undamaged, systematic attacks by enemy-dive bombers and torpedo planes. Eighty four Japanese planes attacked the ship in three waves. Capt. Gatch, now in America recovering from his wounds, was unable to attend.

The ship was named in honor of Mrs. Dashiell's late husband, a naval inventor and an authority on dock building.

ers that looked like rowboats by comparison, the battleship knifed with scarcely a roll through angry Winter seas toward a tiny pin-point on the broad expanse of the Atlantic where she was to attack the "enemy ship."

The run to the target area was uneventful. Several "contacts" were reported which might have been submarines, but if they were present they made no attempt to attack. The crews, however, never relaxed their vigilance day and night.

"Enemy" Contacted
On the third morning at sea the ship's loudspeaker system blared the news that "contact" with the target raft was expected shortly before noon, and the crew gulped breakfast and rushed to battle stations to prepare for the "assault."

An icy gale whipped frosty spray across the bow, and crew members and officers on deck bundled into Winter clothing. Despite the fact that the Dreadnaught's scout plane was unable to locate the target because of bad weather, the ship came into firing position almost on schedule.

Guns were manned and ready when word spread that the raft, pulled by a tug, had been sighted. In a matter of minutes, the 16-inch guns were blazing away with deadly accuracy.

Although the target was only 40 by 20 feet direct hits were scored and other shells fell so close they were considered hits because they struck in an area the size of a battleship.

UNIONS PLAN MIGHTY LOBBY

ular program of the four labor groups.

The CIO's executive board sounded the keynote of the coalition's platform when it adopted a report denouncing "an unholy alliance of poll tax Democrats with the most reactionary wings of the Republican party." The congressional group, the board said, has given notice that it intends to "sabotage, rather than support," President Roosevelt.

The board voted that the organizations join "to resist this conspiracy," and called on all legislative committees of the CIO chapters to band together and urge on congress the "views of American workers."

The "reactionary coalition in congress" must be blocked in its intention "to ride rough-shod over any considerations of national welfare, war policy, national unity and health for war workers," the board said.

NEW DESTROYER LAUNCHED AS NEMESIS TO JAPS

KEARNEY, N. J., Feb. 6 — The destroyer USS Dashiell was launched today with the special wish that it be a nemesis to the Nipponese.

As the destroyer slid down the ways at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. the sponsor, Mrs. Robert Brooke Dashiell of Annapolis, Md., dedicated it to the destruction of the Japs. She is the mother-in-law of Capt. Thomas L. Gatch, who was wounded when the American battleship he commanded shot down 32 Jap airplanes in a naval battle off Santa Cruz Island on October 26.

The unidentified battleship was the first in this war to beat off and survive, almost undamaged, systematic attacks by enemy-dive bombers and torpedo planes. Eighty four Japanese planes attacked the ship in three waves. Capt. Gatch, now in America recovering from his wounds, was unable to attend.

The ship was named in honor of Mrs. Dashiell's late husband, a naval inventor and an authority on dock building.

RED CROSS OFFICIALS STUDY CAMPAIGN PLAN

Pickaway county Red Cross officials met Friday evening in the office of Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman, to discuss the approaching financial campaign for $16,800 scheduled to open March 1.

Jack Wenrich, field representative for national Red Cross, was present, discussing numerous phases of the chapter's work and projects it will be called on to complete during the next year.

FILES FOR DIVORCE

Glen (Jack) Heeter, former Circleville youth, has filed suit for divorce in Franklin county common pleas court from Helen Melson Heeter, also formerly of Circleville.

The Heeters were married here in 1931, were divorced in 1937 and remarried in 1938.

They are living in Columbus.

HOOVER PAYS FINE

Orville Willard Hoover of Ashville, arrested Friday afternoon for operating an automobile without a driver's license, paid a fine of $10 and costs to Squire B. T. Hedges following a plea of guilty.

Hoover was arrested by State Highway Patrolman Wendell Lohr on Route 23 north of Circleville.

New Battleship Proves Worth in Target Run; Now Ready for Battle

ers that looked like rowboats by comparison, the battleship knifed with scarcely a roll through angry Winter seas toward a tiny pinpoint on the broad expanse of the Atlantic where she was to attack the "enemy ship."

The run to the target area was uneventful. Several "contacts" were reported which might have been submarines, but if they were present they made no attempt to attack. The crews, however, never relaxed their vigilance day and night.

"Enemy" Contacted On the third morning at sea the ship's loudspeaker system blared the news that "contact" with the target raft was expected shortly before noon, and the crew gulped breakfast and rushed to battle stations to prepare for the "assault."

An icy gale whipped frosty spray across the bow, and crew members and officers on deck bundled into Winter clothing. Despite the fact that the Dreadnaught's scout plane was unable to locate the target because of bad weather, the ship came into firing position almost on schedule.

Guns were manned and ready when word spread that the raft, pulled by a tug, had been sighted. In a matter of minutes, the 16-inch guns were blazing away with deadly accuracy.

Although the target was only 40 by 20 feet direct hits were scored and other shells fell so close they were considered hits because they struck in an area the size of a battleship.

Young People's Rally Scheduled for Christian Union Church's Membership

Service Will Be Held On Sunday; Quarterly Meet Being Arranged

A young people's rally day will be observed Sunday at Circleville Church of Christ in Christian Union, the Rev. Ross W. Hayslip cancelling his preaching service so that all time can be devoted to the Sunday school program.

A complete program has been arranged with many young folk of the church participating.

The weekly young people's meeting of the church has been changed from 7:30 p. m. Monday to 7:30 p. m. Friday each week.

The Rev. Mr. Hayslip will speak on "The Last Night in Babylon" at his Sunday evening service.

QUARTERLY MEETING

Beginning February 9 the Church of Christ in Christian Union will conduct a quarterly meeting. The first service will be the Central Zone Young People's Rally.

The Wednesday service will be in the interest of church extension.

The Rev. Mr. Hayslip said the remaining services will be evangelistic.

Specially assigned to assist in the services will be the Rev. S. G. Williams of Delaware.

Rites will be conducted nightly at 7:30 p. m. through Sunday, February 14.

METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE GATHER IN NEW HOLLAND

At least 100 Circleville young people, members of the Methodist church youth fellowship unit, went to New Holland Saturday accompanied by the Rev. Neil H. Peterson to attend the mid-Winter Institute of the Methodist Youth Fellowship organization.

The Rev. Mr. Peterson is on the faculty of the Institute, being scheduled to discuss "Workings of the Methodist Youth Fellowship."

Other faculty members were to be the Rev. Lawrence Lineberger, "The Bible"; the Rev. George Wyman, "Christian Missions"; the Rev. Philip Scott was to be in charge of recreation.

The Rev. V. C. Stump of the New Holland church was serving as host pastor.

The all-day program was to start at 9 a. m. with registration, after which various features were to be conducted during the entire day.

A banquet is scheduled at 5:30 p. m. Principal address will be "A Philosophy of Life" by the Rev. George Wilson, D. D., of Columbus.

DR. HARRY E. BRIGHT TO SPEAK TO METHODISTS

Dr. Harry E. Bright, Lancaster, superintendent of the Chillicothe district of the Methodist church, will speak Sunday at services of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The district official's subject has not been announced by the Rev. Neil Peterson.

Special music for the service will be the choir anthem, "Spirit of God" by Emily W. Gail.

E. Louis of New Holland. And just in case you may have forgotten about it, we are repeating that Harry is president of the local county trustee and clerks' organization and a real booster for it.

Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS BERRY

Shaving

That's a hard job for a lot of farmers, at this season of the year, for we are having so many cold dry winds that it is very hard to keep from getting your face chafed.

I was on a farm last week, where I had an appointment with the owner and operator; and I was surprised and pleased to see how he had solved this problem. "I have found that it pays me to put a generous supply of some good face lotion on my face and hands, about an hour before I go to bed, so as to give it some time to 'dry in,' so it won't get on the pillow," he explained. "I do this about two or three times a week, when we are having a lot of cold, dry winds, like we are having now," he continued. "I think I have had a harder time to keep my face in condition so I can get the whiskers off, and to keep my hands from chafing this winter, than I have ever had, for I am like most farmers this year, I am still trying to get the corn crop in, and I'll be almost till corn grows, getting it done, if we don't get a little settled weather."

He hastened to explain that he wasn't "kicking about it" for he "could take it," and that he was very thankful to have some corn to get in. He'll do what many corn belt farmers will do this year, and he is already doing it; he'll feed a lot of his corn out of the shock, even if it is an inconvenient way, to feed it, and he has trouble with 'chafed' face and hands.

"What kind of a face lotion would you use?" is a question in your mind now. Of course I can't answer that by recommending the one this man is using, but if you will write me and enclose a post card, I'll gladly give you the name of the lotion. It is one of the very best ones on the market; even better than some of the home made ones, we used to use on the home farm. What do you suppose they were? We used goose grease and polecat fat, both produced and manufactured on the farm, by rendering the fat of the respective animals that produced them. A friend recommended snake oil, but we were never able to get it or to produce it on the farm, for we couldn't find the snake, right at the time, when we needed the lotion. I might add that an old man, who had used snake oil all his life, said that it would keep your joints limber, like that of a snake, in addition to preventing your hands and face from 'chafing'. I don't know how scientific he was in his recommendation, nor just what kind of snakes he made his lotion from. You might ask some of the older citizens of your community, about this, and if you learn of a good recipe for making snake lotion, will you send us the formula?

ing worship at the M. E. church in the town.

Again at 7:30 in the evening they will have a part in the evening services at the U. B. church. Rev. Dwight Woodworth and Rev. C. W. Smith are the pastors at the respective churches.

The highlight of the week's celebration will be Tuesday evening, 7:30 at the M. E. church when a court of Honor will be held, to which all parents and town citizens are invited. This will be a very impressive candle light program, in which eight Tenderfoot Scouts as well as seven Second Class Scouts will be advanced with recognized emblematic awards.

The Scouts will wear their suits during the week in observance of the 33rd birthday of Scouting, the birthday being Monday, February 8.

The "court" will be honored Tuesday evening with the presence of several scout executives from Columbus.

A Rheumatism Treatment

We get many recommendations for the treatment of some of the many impairments that hard working farmers have; but the one that we get most is for rheumatism—whatever that is. (The medical profession doesn't yet know much about it, but they are agreed that being bilious and rather run down in health makes it worse, and may even cause an attack), so it is wise to prevent this.

Here is a formula, that was given to us by one of our readers who is best described as a "wag". (He surely sees the funny side of life, even though tragedy has been his lot all his life.) You put an ounce of spignet root in a gallon jug of whisky and fill it up with the very best corn whisky you can get, and then when you feel a bit stiff, take a pretty good swallow of it, and repeat the treatment as it is indicated, but not oftener than three times a day. He says that he is afraid of himself, so he gets his wife to measure out the dose for him, even if she "shorts him a little", in her measuring.

As I was leaving he pointed out that when you had to refill the perscription, that you didn't need to bother to get more spignet root—just add another gallon of whisky, stir a little and you had a whole new supply.

Don't take me seriously. This may or it may not have merit; I don't know, but I do know that there is a lot of dynamite in a treatment like that. The medical profession is agreed that there is such a thing as a disease known as alcoholism; and that when you once get it, you have lost control of yourself, and you no longer take or leave whisky alone; it takes you. One of the finest men I ever knew had it, and he died many years before his time, after a long, hard, losing battle, trying to cure alcoholism. He didn't cure it. It killed him.

If you don't believe that there is such a thing as alcoholism, go to any hospital for the insane, and ask them to show you through the alcoholic ward. They all have one, and it is well populated with folks, who were once respectable citizens, who could take or leave alcoholic beverages alone. Much of the time they have what is known to the medical profession, as, "Delerium Tremens", when they have long and losing fights with large, ferocious, snakes, with big glassy eyes.

Am I right when I add that one is just a plain fool to think that he can take or leave whisky or other alcoholic beverages alone; and who even takes a chance on home made rheumatism treatment, that is largely whisky?

Entertain the Laying Hens. That's the advice of one of the best informed poultry specialists that I have ever had the pleasure

Jesus Affirms His Deity

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 7 is John 8:12-59, the Golden Text being John 14:9, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father.")

"I AM THE light of the world," said Jesus to those gathered around Him. "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

The Pharisees were scornful. "Thou bearest record of thyself," said they; "the record is not true." Jesus answered, "Though I bear record of myself, yet My record is true; for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man. And yet if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, and I and the Father that sent me."

Also to this accusation Jesus said, "It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that bear witness of Myself, and the Father that sent Me beareth witness of me."

Where Is Thy Father?

"Where is Thy Father?" they asked, showing that they knew not what Jesus was talking about. "Ye neither know Me, nor My Father," He said to them.

Giving these stiff-necked churchmen up as a bad job, there being no use arguing with men who would not understand because of obstinacy, Jesus said to them, "I go My way, and ye shall seek Me, and shall die in your sins: whither I go, ye cannot come."

The Jews thought, or pretended to think, that Jesus meant that He would kill Himself. In their law suicide was as bad as murder, and those who committed it would go to the darkest regions of the nether world.

Later Jesus told them, "When ye have lifted up the Son of Man, then shall ye know that I am He, and that I do nothing of Myself; but as My Father hath taught Me, I speak these things."

Jesus Anticipates His Death

He meant by this, when they had crucified Him, for well He knew that that was what they meant to do. They would not see that He was the Messiah for whom they had been looking; the Christ that was to save them. They were angry with and jealous of the fact that the common people listened to Him and loved Him for Himself and for the good He did. He did God's will as He said, "The Father hath not left Me alone; for I do always those things that please Him."

When He spoke these words, many believed on Him, and He said to them, "If ye continue in My word, then are ye My disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

How free? They asked; "We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest Thou, 'Ye shall be free'?" That was a very odd statement to come from the Jews who had been continually in bondage to one people or another for generations. They were under the rule of Rome at the time they were speaking.

"If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham; but now ye seek to kill Me, a Man that hath told you the truth which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham."

And further He told them, "If God were your Father ye would love Me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but He sent me? Why do ye not understand My speech?"

Pharisees Call Names

Not being able to best the Lord in argument, the Jews resorted to name calling—always a proof that one is worsted. They called Him a Samaritan and said He had a devil. Jesus denied the devil and was not impressed with the statement that He was a Samaritan, as He knew that Samaritans might be as good, or even better, than Jews. He told them that in all that He did He honored the Father, and that "if a man keep My sayings, he shall never see death." Abraham, He stated, "rejoiced to see My Day."

Then they said they knew that He was not 50 years old, and Abraham had been dead for a long time. How, then, could He know him? And Jesus answered quietly, "Before Abraham was, I am." When they heard these words they argued no longer, but started to pick up stones to hurl at Him. But Jesus slipped away and hid, "for His time was not yet come."

These men who would have stoned Him and did crucify Him, where are they? Gone long since and their names forgotten. But the One they reviled and did to death is known all over the world. Men pray to Him and believe in Him and try to walk in His footsteps—in the Light of the World.

ASHVILLE

"Get in, all of you," is the slogan our township trustee Harry Rose is enforcing to get every one of the trustees of the county along with the clerks, in the county organization. Has 'em about all in now, he said. And along with these he has some of the "big boys" in the organization—Congressman Walter Brehm of Logan with his dollar-twenty-five as cash dues and our senators Everett Addison and Roscoe Walcott of Columbus are listed along with our county representative, H. E. Louis of New Holland. And just in case you may have forgotten about it, we are repeating that Harry is president of the local county trustee and clerks' organization.

Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS BERRY

Shaving

That's a hard job for a lot of farmers, at this season of the year, for we are having so many cold dry winds that it is very hard to keep from getting your face chafed.

I was on a farm last week, where I had an appointment with the owner and operator; and I was surprised and pleased to see how he had solved this problem. "I have found that it pays me to put a generous supply of some good face lotion on my face and hands, about an hour before I go to bed, so as to give it some time to 'dry in', so it won't get on the pillow," he explained. "I do this about two or three times a week, when we are having a lot of cold, dry winds, like we are having now," he continued. "I think I have had a harder time to keep my face in condition so I can get the whiskers off, and to keep my hands from 'chafing' this winter, than I have ever had, for I am like most farmers this year, I am still trying to get the corn crop in, and I'll be almost till corn grows, getting it done, if we don't get a little settled weather."

He hastened to explain that he wasn't "kicking about it" for he "could take it", and that he was very thankful to have some corn to get in. He'll do what many corn belt farmers will do this year, and he is already doing it; he'll feed a lot of his corn out of the shock, even if it is an inconvenient way, to feed it, and her has trouble with 'chafed' face and hands.

"What kind of a face lotion would you use?" is a question in your mind now. Of course I can't answer that by recommending the one this man is using, but if you will write me and enclose a post card, I'll gladly give you the name of the lotion. It is one of the very best ones on the market; even better than some of the home made ones, we used to use on the home farm. What do you suppose they were? We used goose grease and polecat fat, both produced and manufactured on the farm, by rendering the fat of the respective animals that produced them. A friend recommended snake oil, but we were never able to get it or to produce it on the farm, for we couldn't find the snake, right at the time, when we needed the lotion. I might add that an old man, who had used snake oil all his life, said that it would keep his joints limber, like that of a snake, in addition to preventing your hands and face from 'chafing'. I don't know how scientific he was in his recommendation, nor just what kind of snakes he made his lotion from. You might ask some of the older citizens of your community, about this, and if you learn of a good recipe for making snake lotion, will you send us the formula?

Our Harvey Sark who underwent a major operation at a Cincinnati hospital a few weeks ago four to be exact, came to his home here Thursday evening and is making a good recovery. Was down to visit headquarters yesterday morning to see that all was moving along in the same good style as when he left. He has been a railway mail clerk for these several years. Will not return to work for some time yet.

Along with the desire for a tiny cup of coffee Thursday soon after the noon hour, came the news that "the gas was off." Hurriedly investigated at "Tom's headquarters" and found things, gas off, there. So we issued orders to Councilmen Tom and Sol Allison, members too, to get busy and notify court member Dan McClain and that in a hurry. So by less than 8 o'clock all line repairs had been made, gas on, and everybody happy and none more so than the gas line workers themselves. No damage had been done where a plenty had been faced.

A Rheumatism Treatment

We get many recommendations for the treatment of some of the many impairments that hard working farmers have; but the one that we get most is for rheumatism—whatever that is. (The medical profession doesn't yet know much about it, but they are agreed that being bilious and rather run down in health makes it worse, and may even cause an attack), so it is wise to prevent this.

Here is a formula, that was given to us by one of our readers who is best described as a "wag". (He surely sees the funny side of life, even though tragedy has been his lot all his life.) You put an ounce of spignet root in a gallon jug of whisky and fill it up with the very best corn whisky you can get, and then when you feel a bit stiff, take a pretty good swallow of it, and repeat the treatment as it is indicated, but not oftener than three times a day. He says that he is afraid of himself, so he gets his wife to measure out the dose for him, even if she "shorts him a little", in her measuring.

As I was leaving he pointed out that when you had to refill the perscription, that you didn't need to bother to get more spignet root—just add another gallon of whisky, stir a little and you had a whole new supply.

Don't take me seriously. This may or it may not have merit; I don't know, but I do know that there is a lot of dynamite in a treatment like that. The medical profession is agreed that there is such a thing as a disease known as alcoholism; and that when you once get it, you have lost control of yourself, and you no longer take or leave whisky alone; it takes you. One of the finest men I ever knew had it, and he died many years before his time, after a long, hard, losing battle, trying to cure alcoholism. He didn't cure it. It killed him.

If you don't believe that there is such a thing as alcoholism, go to any hospital for the insane, and ask them to show you the insane alcoholic ward. They all have one, and it is well populated with folks, who were once respectable citizens, who could take or leave alcoholic beverages alone. Much of the time they have what is known to the medical profession, as, "Delerium Tremens", when they have long and losing fights with large, ferocious, snakes, with big glassy eyes.

Am I right when I add that one is just a plain fool to think that he can take or leave whisky or other alcoholic beverages alone; and who even takes a chance on home made rheumatism treatment, that is largely whisky?

THE GREAT SIEGE

STALINGRAD is now immortal, and so is Joseph Stalin, the man for whom it was named. The defense of that city, besieged for so many months by an army of more than 3,000,000 Germans and their allies, ranks as one of the greatest feats in military history. It was the backbone of Russian defense, and against it the Nazi armies threw all their power. And the Russians, with their backs to the Volga River, held them and bled them and wore them down until only a comparative handful remained to surrender.

That fight was a test of men! Both armies fought to the death. They fought in the suburbs, in the streets, in the public buildings, in the churches, in the cellars, in the sewers, in caves dug in the ground. They fought in fire and smoke so thick that the foes could not see each other. Germans locked themselves in demolished buildings and defied the Russians to break down the walls or blow them up. It was a supreme proof of the vigor and tenacity of the human race in an era of supposed decadence and weakness. The fighters on both sides deserve homage.

But the crazy fool who caused all that, who sent those brave Teutons where they had no business, and kept them there until they died in torture and terror — there should be no more homage for him anywhere on this earth.

Fate seems to be working that way. Hitler cannot last much longer.

THE MIDDLE WAY

THE labor pendulum swings. The swing is clear today in the general American attitude toward organized labor, and is an important measure pending in Congress.

Labor was weak and unorganized and exploited. Powerful groups of employers ran things pretty much to suit themselves. That procedure inevitably drove labor to organize and seek control of work and wages. It succeeded so well that now the shoe is on the other foot, and capital and management are often defied and exploited. Labor unions too often come into control of racketeers.

In such a tug of war, the only final recourse is an appeal to government. So we find the congressional Judiciary Committee reporting to the House the Hobbs Bill, which seeks application of the Anti-Racketeering Act of 1934 against powerful labor unions accused of oppressive acts.

That bill aims to remove the immunity which the Supreme Court a few months ago said was conferred on labor unions. It is hoped, as the New York Times suggests, that "every real friend of peaceable, honest labor will support this bill."

The nation as a whole stands in the

SENATORS ARGUE PRICES

WASHINGTON — The shipowners' lobby to increase war profits fired its first shot behind closed doors the other day in the Senate Commerce Committee. It resulted in a duel between Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, outspoken foe of the shipping lobby, and Senator George Radcliffe of Maryland, who ran interference for the shipowners.

Radcliffe announced that he was planning to offer a bill to nullify Section 902, the so-called "enhancement clause" of the Maritime Act of 1936.

This provides that when ships are seized by the government, shipowners shall be paid pre-war prices, not prices enhanced by the emergency.

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren since has ruled that all ship prices must be governed by the market value of ships on September 8, 1939—the date of an emergency proclamation by the President. But the shipping lobby is demanding that the "enhancement clause" be amended to make it possible for them to receive the 1943 "going market" price, not the 1939 price, for ships seized by the government or sunk.

Senator Radcliffe didn't go this far, but he favored legislation permitting shipowners to sue the government in the Court of Claims for the difference between the September 8, 1939, price and the 1943 estimated price.

CLARK SHOTS AT PROFITS

However, the Marylander's efforts to sell the committee on the "compromise" ran into a rough stiff-arm from Clark of Missouri.

"Your proposal, if enacted, would open the door to the collection of millions of dollars of unearned profits from the government," Clark told Radcliffe. "A great number of the ships were built before the emergency, when labor and material costs were low, yet you would make it possible for the owners to collect the full 1943 market value for them."

"Furthermore, your proposal would mean that the government would, in effect, be buying back what the taxpayers' money helped build, for nearly all private ship construction has been subsidized."

Radcliffe argued that there was legal ground for believing that the "enhancement clause" violated the Constitutional provision that a "just and reasonable" price be paid for property requisitioned by the government.

"The shipowners are getting a fair price now, judging by the amount of their investment," Clark shot back. "I don't intend to have the government robbed. I had a hand in writing the 'enhancement clause' with former Senator Hugo Black, now on the Supreme Court, and I won't permit it to be emasculated without a fight."

Sensing that the majority of the committee was against him, Radcliffe pulled in his horns, announced he would postpone

DIET AND HEALTH

Effect Diet Can Have on Feet Is Shown by Recent Research

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"BAD FEET are good barometers of failing health."

So says a prominent Chicago orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Phillip Lewin.

He is also responsible for the epigram that there is such a thing as "foot dyspepsia." A bulging foot is a sign of eating too much or a bad heart. It never hurt a patient with foot trouble to go on a reducing diet or an anti-gout diet for a few days. Diabetes more often shows up first in the feet than anywhere else.

Dr. Clendingning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

And one of the most dangerous things a diabetic patient can do is buy a new pair of shoes. With a very few exceptions, there is no investment a diabetic can make that furnishes more dividends than to employ an experienced shoe-maker. Shoes come in pairs: feet come in two different sizes and shapes. At least, if you are a diabetic, tell your shoe dealer that you are a diabetic and make him give you shoes large enough.

May Cause Examination

Besides this, there is only one reason that it would be a good thing for a diabetic to buy a new pair of shoes—in case he or she does not know about the diabetes, and the new pair of shoes begins to hurt, then he may go to a doctor who will make an examination of the urine and find out that the diabetes is there. In that way the new shoes may do a good turn.

So you see there is some connection between foot pain and diet. The commonest causes of foot discomfort are not necessarily in the feet. Probably overweight heads the list of causes. Then diabetes. Then bad habits. The feet are all right, but they get abused. And then they hurt.

Wrong Sitting Habits

It isn't all from standing or walking. Says an orthopedic surgeon: "More foot troubles come from sitting wrongly than from walking wrongly." Short-legged persons sitting at a desk or a card table on a chair that is too high for them, leave their heels off the floor and keep the toes turned up like a ballet dancer, nail side down. Then they thump the toes on the floor, putting a strain on the tendon from the heel to the back of the foot.

It isn't entirely limited to short-legged persons. Look at tense people at a baseball game, sitting on the edge of the benches, with only the toes touching the floor and pounding the boards in front of them for all they are worth.

Damage done by repeated bad habits can't be overcome by pads or braces or exercises.

Another faulty sitting posture that is common in childhood is to sit with the legs folded so that the heels touch the back of the legs. In this posture the feet are in the flat-foot position.

Sit with your feet flat on the ground—never rest on your toes, standing, walking or sitting, except for exercise.

To summarize: the foot is part of the body. It isn't a pedestal or a set of bones. What you eat, what you do, how you sit, how you walk, what kind of shoes you wear, all affect it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. L.: Will you kindly inform me whether or not a hemorrhage can be caused by bronchitis?

Answer: The chances are that a hemorrhage in the face of what has been called bronchitis is due to tuberculosis. In other words, the bronchitis is really tuberculosis of the lungs. It is a very dangerous attitude of mind to try to comfort yourself with the belief that a hemorrhage can occur from bronchitis. Go on the assumption that it is due to tuberculosis, have a competent doctor examine you carefully, have an x-ray of the chest and abide by his advice.

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
KAY STEVENS, personable young president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Jake has been very friendly with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin, HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

YESTERDAY: Jake and Kay are married, with David as a witness. After a two-week honeymoon, they arrive back at Kay's apartment in New York, where Anna tells Kay that it is urgent that she call Het immediately.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

"WHAT'S ON her mind, I wonder?" Kay asked Jake as she dialed Het's number the night they got back to New York from their honeymoon. "Hello, oh, hello, Het . . . yes, five minutes ago . . . yes, marvelous, never want to travel any other way now . . . yes, he's fine." There was a loving glance at Jake at this point. He was sprawled comfortably in a big chair, one leg thrown over the arm. His dirty slacks would probably ruin the green and white slip cover, but no matter. "Oh, Het, I'm sorry, I don't see how we can."

"Can what?" Jake asked. "Go down to Het's. There's a crowd down there for supper. She's been holding it, hoping we'd get there in time."

"That's a wonderful idea," Jake said, an expectant smile on his face. "Why can't we go? I'm just spoiling for a party."

"Just a minute," Kay told Het, putting down the receiver. "We can't go out tonight very well," she explained to Jake. "Look at us," her hands indicated their muddled, dirty clothes.

"Oh, nobody cares how we look," he said, with a tolerant smile. "We have to unpack, get settled." She was careful not to say that she wanted to spend their first night home alone with him.

"Oh, heavens, Anna can unpack for you tomorrow and I can unpack any old time." Jake's unpacking probably would mean dumping his suitcase full of dirty clothes in a corner of her white floor.

Kay was a methodical unpacker. It took her ages. Every article had to be put away in its proper place, sachets left in the empty bags. It was a ritual; nobody else ever did it for her.

"Well, all right," she acquiesced. She'd get up early and unpack them. "But please, Jake, we won't stay late, will we?" She knew these parties, the later the hour the stronger the arguments. As far as she could make out, none of them ever went to bed.

"We'll leave any time you want," darling," he agreed. He came over and put his arm around her shoulder. Every time he touched her she felt hot and cold. He picked up the waiting telephone receiver.

"Hello, sweetheart, hold everything for the bride and groom. We'll be there in half an hour," he called out happily, and hung up.

"Half an hour doesn't give us much time. It takes quite a while to get down there," Kay said, wondering what she could do in 15 minutes to make herself feel like one of Het's all-night sessions. She was sure Jake's friends thought the marriage a foolish one. She couldn't let him down tonight.

"I'm ready to start now," Jake said. "You appear to have forgotten, Mrs. Kerr, that all the fresh clothes I possess are down in my own room."

"Oh, Jake, what shall we do?" she was in distress.

"Don't look so worried." He was amused. "Het always has things of mine down at her place. She does my mending. Ten to one I'll find something or other there." He gave her a little push. "Go along now, three minutes are gone already."

But he pulled her quickly to him, kissed her hard. "Another minute. Not wasted, though."

She scrubbed most of the grime off in a steaming tub, put a cooling cream on her face and felt better. Jake was sitting on the edge of the bed when she came out of the bathroom. He looked incongruous.

"This is a lovely apartment, my pet," he said, "but where are you going to put me? Two days of this room and I'd start tearing the ruffles off in desperation."

"I know. We'll work it out. But go on in there now and get clean." She dressed hurriedly, so that she'd be finished before Jake got out. She hastily thumbed through the clothes in her closet, nervously dropped one dress on the floor when she thought Jake had turned the knob on the door. Her slip was a beautiful one, but she didn't want him to discover her in it.

"Jake's got to have his own room," she thought. "I can't always be on my guard and hurried like this."

They sped downtown on the East River drive. Jake looked appreciatively around at the tall buildings, the crowded streets. He sniffed the air. "Smells good, doesn't it," he said, "gasoline fumes and all."

"It doesn't smell as good as the orange groves, or the Ozarks, or the redwoods, or the air on top of Pike's Peak."

"Oh, yes, it does, really. Because it smells like home."

"Some day let's buy a place in the country, for summers and week-ends," Kay said with warmth. "Something light and unpretentious, with so much land that everywhere we look belongs to us."

"Don't tell me you're a suppressed farmer, or farmerette, or whatever you call the female of the species. You—" he laughed—"of all people."

"I never thought I was," she said in self-defense. "I've always felt as though cities, New York especially, were part of my blood. But I don't know. The country looked much more appealing this trip. I'd be willing to try it now."

"I think I'd go mad. But anyway, before we go house and land hunting, my sweet, we've got to point or two to settle right now. Where am I going to hang my hat, strewn my clothes, and leave my cigaret ashes?" He was deftly winding the car in and out of the narrow streets near Het's.

"I have an enormous dressing room. Big enough for a chest of drawers, a desk and whatever else you need. We'll do it over." Her mind was busy picking out materials for the draperies, pondering about rugs. She only dimly heard Jake say, "A day bed is probably the thing."

"What was that?" she asked. "A day bed," he repeated. "For the nights I get in late. I won't want to disturb you."

"I hadn't realized you intended going out without me," she said, an icy note creeping into her voice. "Oh, that's not it, silly," he said with a laugh. But there'll be many nights when I work late down at my place."

"Are you keeping your own apartment?" This was news to her.

"Of course," he stated calmly. "Where did you think I was going to work?"

"There's space in my living room for three concert grands," she said gently. She didn't want to antagonize him.

"And there'd be Anna wanting to vacuum clean and dust, and complaints if I played after 11 o'clock. No, I just can't work that way. There was a shade of irritation in his voice.

"I understand. I hope other people will."

"There you go, being conventional." He was genial again. "My friends will, and if yours don't, then they're not the kind of people I like, and I won't give a hoot what they think."

"He parked the car in front of Het's. The sounds of the party filled the streets, quieted by New York's Sunday calm.

"Come on, darling, let's go," he said, taking Kay's arm and leading up the stairs two at a time. "This sounds familiar and good. If we go to the country we'll have to move this bunch into the barn. There's always some excitement when they're around. I wonder what it will be tonight."

One-Minute Test

1. What insect can carry 15 or 20 times its own weight?
2. What do bees and butterflies eat?
3. Are both the male and female of the species known as lightning bugs?

Words of Wisdom

It is the old lesson—a worthy purpose, patient energy for its accomplishment, a resoluteness undaunted by difficulties, and then success.—W. M. Punchon.

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today don't rummage in closets or dark places; things may fall without warning. Interest yourself in other people. Call in a neighbor for a cup of tea or coffee in the early morning if you both are on an early work shift. Stand up for your rights; be aggressive. Unless you assert yourself, your gentleness may be mistaken for indifference. Get out of a rut. New possibilities should prove exciting. You have a witty, fun-loving nature, are quick to laugh and enjoy the company of friends. Sensitive and perceptive, you are too easily worried and irritated by chance remarks and actions of others. Practice poise and self-assurance. Your married life will be happy.

Hints on Etiquette

When speaking of one's husband to a friend say, "John said," when speaking to someone who is unfamiliar with the husband, say "My husband said."

Horoscope for Sunday

Yours is an analytic nature, inclined to probe and study things about you. Beware lest you analyze friends too much. Be more cheerful in your attitude toward the world. You possess excellent taste and judgment and will find happiness and contentment in your home. Your friends may be planning a surprise for you today. If a sudden idea occurs to you about a new project, unexpected good will from a person you least expect to be in a position to help, might enable you to make it a success.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. The ant.
2. Butterflies feed on the nectar of flowers and the sap of trees. Bees feed on the nectar of flowers.
3. No, only the adult males.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and soon about the day's tasks, reaching the plant via the post and finding the force arriving. Quiet there in the early morning, and nothing can be quieter than a newspaper shop outside of working hours. Contrast, I suppose.

Frank Fischer dropped in to report that school officials had decided against continued publication of the Red and Black. The burden, because of war conditions, had become too heavy on these prints and some action was necessary. Responsibility for shouldering the cost of publication was shifted to the school officials and their decision was to cease production.

The Red and Black was printed each Saturday in the Herald for a period of sixteen years without charge of any kind to the school. Your daily paper comes to you in average eight page size. The Herald, during history of the Red and Black, gave to that publication and the high school the equivalent of all the papers you receive in a period of more than seven months. This was in addition to regular news space used in covering sports and other high school activities. Copies of The Herald also were provided gratis each week for all members of the high school class in journalism.

The Herald will continue publication of news regarding high school activities, but the boys and girls will no longer have their own paper of which they have long been so proud. It was with sincere regret that The Herald took the step it was forced to take.

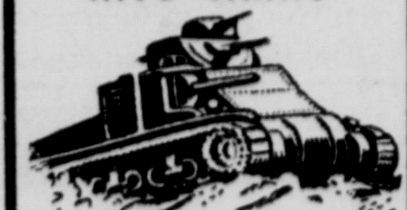

Doc Montgomery one day probably will do as he promised, murder me painfully, but the letter I received today is entirely too good to keep just to myself. Starts off by saying he received my Christmas card on January 26. "Somehow," he wrote, "one doesn't appreciate Christmas when the weather is so damned hot." Then he tells of seeing local boys from time to time, mentioning among others Clarence Marshall, now known as "the G Man." Got that name when he slid into a river and a can of garbage topped in on top of him. Sees Ned Plum, Bill Kellstadt, Dick Mills, Captain Len Bowsher.

Doc says he has just recovered from a touch of the "wipe, blot and fan" ailment" so common among soldiers in hot climes. "Have been receiving The Herald quite regularly," he writes. "Really appreciate it. George Gerhardt and Bryan Custer have been writing me quite regularly—you give me the news that's fit to print, and they give me the rest." Wrote about the last election briefly, broke off in the middle of a sentence and penned: "Well, there goes my blood pressure again." And those who know Doc are fully aware of the fact that his blood pressure was up.

Then the postscript and the threat of what would be done in the event of publication. Sorry, Captain, but you are a long way off, too many persons know you and applaud you for the service you are giving, your letters are too interesting. A lot of good luck to you and all the rest of our young men fighting wherever they are. That is the wish of all of us.

THE GREAT SIEGE

STALINGRAD is now immortal, and so is Joseph Stalin, the man for whom it was named. The defense of that city, besieged for so many months by an army of more than 3,000,000 Germans and their allies, ranks as one of the greatest feats in military history. It was the backbone of Russian defense, and against it the Nazi armies threw all their power. And the Russians, with their backs to the Volga River, held them and bled them and wore them down until only a comparative handful remained to surrender.

That fight was a test of men! Both armies fought to the death. They fought in the suburbs, in the streets, in the public buildings, in the churches, in the cellars, in the sewers, in caves dug in the ground. They fought in fire and smoke so thick that the foes could not see each other. Germans locked themselves in demolished buildings and defied the Russians to break down the walls or blow them up. It was a supreme proof of the vigor and tenacity of the human race in an era of supposed decadence and weakness. The fighters on both sides deserve homage.

But the crazy fool who caused all that, who sent those brave Teutons where they had no business, and kept them there until they died in torture and terror — there should be no more homage for him anywhere on this earth.

Fate seems to be working that way. Hitler cannot last much longer.

THE MIDDLE WAY

THE labor pendulum swings. The swing is clear today in the general American attitude toward organized labor, and is an important measure pending in Congress.

Labor was weak and unorganized and exploited. Powerful groups of employers ran things pretty much to suit themselves. That procedure inevitably drove labor to organize and seek control of work and wages. It succeeded so well that now the shoe is on the other foot, and capital and management are often defied and exploited. Labor unions too often come into control of racketeers.

In such a tug of war, the only final recourse is an appeal to government. So we find the congressional Judiciary Committee reporting to the House the Hobbs Bill, which seeks application of the Anti-Racketeering Act of 1934 against powerful labor unions accused of oppressive acts.

That bill aims to remove the immunity which the Supreme Court a few months ago said was conferred on labor unions. It is hoped, as the New York Times suggests, that "every real friend of peaceable, honest labor will support this bill."

The nation as a whole stands in the

By DREW PEARSON

SENATORS ARGUE PRICES

WASHINGTON — The shipowners' lobby to increase war profits fired its first shot behind closed doors the other day in the Senate Commerce Committee. It resulted in a duel between Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, outspoken foe of the shipping lobby, and Senator George Radcliffe of Maryland, who ran interference for the shipowners.

Radcliffe announced that he was planning to offer a bill to nullify Section 902, the so-called "enhancement clause" of the Maritime Act of 1936.

This provides that when ships are seized by the government, shipowners shall be paid pre-war prices, not prices enhanced by the emergency.

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren since has ruled that all ship prices must be governed by the market value of ships on September 8, 1939—the date of an emergency proclamation by the President. But the shipping lobby is demanding that the "enhancement clause" be amended to make it possible for them to receive the 1943 "going market" price, not the 1939 price, for ships seized by the government or sunk.

Senator Radcliffe didn't go this far, but he favored legislation permitting shipowners to sue the government in the Court of Claims for the difference between the September 8, 1939, price and the 1943 estimated price.

CLARK SHOTS AT PROFITS

However, the Marylander's efforts to sell the committee on the "compromise" ran into a rough stiff-arm from Clark of Missouri.

"Your proposal, if enacted, would open the door to the collection of millions of dollars of unearned profits from the government," Clark told Radcliffe. "A great number of the ships were built before the emergency, when labor and material costs were low, yet you would make it possible for the owners to collect the full 1943 market value for them."

"Furthermore, your proposal would mean that the government would, in effect, be buying back what the taxpayers' money helped build, for nearly all private ship construction has been subsidized."

Radcliffe argued that there was legal ground for believing that the "enhancement clause" violated the Constitutional provision that a "just and reasonable" price be paid for property requisitioned by the government.

"The shipowners are getting a fair price now, judging by the amount of their investment," Clark shot back. "I don't intend to have the government robbed. I had a hand in writing the 'enhancement clause' with former Senator Hugo Black, now on the Supreme Court, and I won't permit it to be emasculated without a fight."

Sensing that the majority of the committee was against him, Radcliffe pulled in his horns, announced he would postpone

DIET AND HEALTH

Effect Diet Can Have on Feet Is Shown by Recent Research

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"BAD FEET are good barometers of failing health."

So says a prominent Chicago orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Phillip Levin.

He is also responsible for the epigram that there is such a thing as "foot dyspepsia." A bulging foot is a sign of eating too much or a bad heart. It never hurt a patient with foot trouble to go on a reducing diet or an anti-gout diet for a few days. Diabetes more often shows up first in the feet than anywhere else.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

And one of the most dangerous things a diabetic patient can do is buy a new pair of shoes. With a very few exceptions, there is no investment a diabetic can make that furnishes more dividends than to employ an experienced shoe-maker. Shoes come in pairs: feet come in two different sizes and shapes. At least, if you are a diabetic, tell your shoe dealer that you are a diabetic and make him give you shoes large enough.

May Cause Examination Besides this, there is only one reason that it would be a good thing for a diabetic to buy a new pair of shoes—in case he or she does not know about the diabetes, and the new pair of shoes begins to hurt, then he may go to a doctor who will make an examination of the urine and find out that the diabetes is there. In that way the new shoes may do a good turn.

So you see there is some connection between foot pain and diet. The commonest causes of foot discomfort are not necessarily in the feet. Probably overweight heads the list of causes. Then diabetes. Then arterial changes.

Then bad habits. The feet are all right, but they get abused. And then they hurt.

Wrong Sitting Habits It isn't all from standing or walking. Says an orthopedic surgeon: "More foot troubles come from sitting wrongly than from walking wrongly." Short-legged persons sitting at a desk or a card table on a chair that is too high for them, leave their heels off the floor and keep the toes turned up like a ballet dancer, nail side down. Then they thump the toes on the floor, putting a strain on the tendon from the heel to the back of the foot.

It isn't entirely limited to short-legged persons. Look at tennis people at a baseball game, sitting on the edge of the benches, with only the toes touching the floor and pounding the boards in front of them for all they are worth.

Damage done by repeated bad habits can't be overcome by pads or braces or exercises.

Another faulty sitting posture that is common in childhood is to sit with the legs folded so that the heels touch the back of the legs; in this posture the feet are in the flat-foot position.

Sit with your feet flat on the ground—never rest on your toes, standing, walking or sitting, except for exercise.

To summarize: the foot is part of the body. It isn't a pedestal or a set of bones. What you eat, what you do, how you sit, how you walk, what kind of shoes you wear, all affect it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. L.: Will you kindly inform me whether or not a hemorrhage can be caused by bronchitis?

Answer: The chances are that a hemorrhage in the face of what has been called bronchitis is due to tuberculosis. In other words, the bronchitis is really tuberculosis of the lungs. It is a very dangerous attitude of mind to try to comfort yourself with the belief that a hemorrhage can occur from bronchitis. Go on the assumption that it is due to tuberculosis, have a competent doctor examine you carefully, have an x-ray of the chest and abide by his advice.

SYNOPSIS

KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin, HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

YESTERDAY, Jake and Kay are married, with David as a witness. After a two-week honeymoon, they arrive back at Kay's apartment in New York, where Anna tells Kay that it is urgent that she call Het immediately.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

"WHAT'S ON her mind, I wonder?" Kay asked Jake as she dialed Het's number the night they got back to New York from their honeymoon. "Hello, oh, hello, Het . . . just five minutes ago . . . yes, yes, marvelous, never want to travel any other way now . . . yes, he's fine." There was a loving glance at Jake at this point. He was sprawled comfortably in a big chair, one leg thrown over the arm. His dirty slacks would probably ruin the green and white slip cover, but no matter. "Oh, Het, I'm sorry, I don't see how we can."

"Can what?" Jake asked. "Go down to Het's. There's a crowd down there for supper. She's been holding it, hoping we'd get there in time."

"That's a wonderful idea," Jake set upright, an expectant smile on his face. "Why can't we go? I'm just spoiling for a party."

"Just a minute," Kay told Het, putting down the receiver. "We can't go out tonight very well," she explained to Jake. "Look at us, my hands indicated they're mused, dirty clothes."

"Oh, nobody cares how we look," he said, with a tolerant smile. "We have to unpack, get settled." She was careful not to say that she wanted to spend their first night home alone with him.

"Oh, heavens, Anna can unpack for you tomorrow and I can unpack any old time," Jake's unpacking probably would mean dumping his suitcase full of dirty clothes in a corner of her white floor.

Kay was a methodical unpacker. It took her ages. Every article had to be put away in its proper place, jackets left in the empty bags. It was a ritual; nobody else ever did it for her.

"Well, all right," she acquiesced. She'd get up early and unpack them. "But please, Jake, we won't stay late, will we?" She knew these parties, the later the hour the stronger the arguments. As far as she could make out, some of them ever went to bed.

"We'll leave any time you want," she said, "but where are you going to put me? Two days of this room and I'd start tearing the ruffles off in desperation."

"I know, we'll work it out. But go on in there now and get clean." She dressed hurriedly, so that she'd be finished before Jake got out. She hastily thumbed through the clothes in her closet, nervously dropped one dress on the floor when she thought Jake had turned the knob on the door. Her slip was a beautiful one, but she didn't want him to discover her in it.

"Jake's got to have his own room," she thought. "I can't always be on my guard and hurried like this."

They sped downtown on the East River drive. Jake looked appreciatively around at the tall buildings, the crowded streets. He sniffed the air. "Smells good, doesn't it," he said, "gasoline fumes and all."

"It doesn't smell as good as the orange groves, or the Ozarks, or the redwoods, or the air on top of Pike's Peak."

"Oh, yes, it does, really. Because it smells like home."

"Some day let's buy a place in the country, for summers and week-ends," Kay said with warmth. "Something little and unpretentious, with so much land that everywhere we look belongs to us."

"It is the old lesson—a worthy purpose, patient energy for its accomplishment, a resoluteness undaunted by difficulties, and then success."—W. M. Punchon.

"I have an enormous dressing room. Big enough for a chest of drawers, a desk and whatever else you need. We'll do it over." Her mind was busy picking out materials for the draperies, pondering about rugs. She only dimly heard Jake say, "A day bed is probably the thing."

"What was that?" she asked. "A day bed," he repeated. "For the nights I get in late. I won't want to disturb you."

"I hadn't realized you intended going out without me," she said, an icy note creeping into her voice. "Oh, that's not it, silly," he said with a laugh. But there'll be many nights when I work late down at my place."

"Are you keeping your own apartment?" This was news to her. "Of course," he stated calmly. "Where did you think I was going to work?"

"There's space in my living room for three concert grands," she said gently. She didn't want to antagonize him.

"And there'd be Anna wanting to vacuum clean and dust, and complaints if I played after 11 o'clock. No, I just can't work that way." There was a shade of irritation in his voice.

"I understand. I hope other people will."

"There you go, being conventional." He was genial again. "My friends will, and if you don't, then they're not the kind of people I like, and I won't give a hoot what they think." He parked the car in front of Het's. The sounds of the party filled the streets, quieted by New York's Sunday calm.

Forrest W. Wood Speaks At Garden Club Meet

Expert Talks On Supply Of Lumber

Forrest W. Wood of Wooster, who is doing extension work for the State department of forestry, was guest speaker Friday at the meeting of the Pickaway County Garden club at the home of Mrs. Luther Bower, Beverly road. He was introduced to the club by Robert L. Brehmer.

Mr. Wood, who travels over Ohio helping the farmers in their work of conservation of forestry, marketing their timber and in reforestation, stated in his talk that there was no shortage in timber in spite of the many uses of lumber for camps, glider planes and gun stocks. Rather, he said, there is a shortage of man power to get the timber out. He discussed black walnut, used for gun stocks, told of a factory at Piqua where four million blank stocks have been made since the beginning of the war. He said that England has received lumber for their training planes, mostly birch, beach and maple.

He showed slides of various trees, showing how to conserve moisture and protect tree roots. He also showed pictures of the Nursery at Marietta where seeds are started and the method of care of seedlings until they are sold to farmers at a nominal price for replanting.

He showed a variety of trees and gave advice as to the proper place for planting. His final pictures were of scenic spots of Ohio.

Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer had charge of the business meeting, receiving the reports of Mrs. Bower, secretary, and Miss Florence Dunton, treasurer.

Mrs. Reichelderfer appointed Mrs. F. K. Blair, Mrs. Tom O. Gilliland and Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson as the nominating committee to select a slate of new officers for the coming year.

Mrs. M. E. Noggle, Mrs. Clarence McAbee, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. T. E. Wilson were named by the president at the Victory Garden committee for the club.

Mrs. Noggle and Mr. Brehmer were heard in talks concerning Victory Garden plans which are to be given members of the club later.

Mrs. Bower was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Gilliland, Mrs. Brehmer, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart and Mrs. E. S. Shane.

CAST PRACTICES FOR PRODUCTION MARCH 4 AND 5

To the interest of many pupils in high school plus the people of Circleville, is the Junior class play: "Dirty Work at the Crossroads".

On visiting the rehearsals one may find Samuel Johnson, dramatic coach, surrounded by his eager cast. Then work begins! "All on the stage for Act One".

The first few lines are read, everything seems perfect—but that's just to an untrained eye, for Mr. Johnson sees many, many faults in these young thespians. So over and over again the lines must be repeated—perhaps they are still not correct! Mr. Johnson adds a few gestures of his own—depicting the characters from the villain to Little Nell.

"Louder! Please!" "The people will come to hear you, as well as to see you!" "Get that 'dead pan' look off your face!" "More expression!" "Let's give it some umph now." "Hit it!" These are all quotations that one may hear when the "gang" is trying to put their parts "across".

This striving will go on for hours—then, the cast is told to go home. Mr. Johnson lends the going over his part while at home, on the way to school, everywhere not just when you're at rehearsal. Practice makes perfect you know.

Members of the junior class play cast will leave, tired and somewhat discouraged—but tomorrow, they resolve, I'm not going to miss my cue!

Thus do rehearsals go on until Thursday and Friday evenings, March 4 and 5, when the juniors present "Dirty Work At The Crossroads," or "Tempted, Tried, and True" in the high school auditorium.

RESERVES SET DATE FOR ANNUAL DANCE

Thursday afternoon the Senior Girl Reserves announced the date for the annual Junior-Senior Girl Reserve dance. The event will be Saturday, February 13.

This year the dance is not open to all high school. Each member of the Reserves may invite her escort and another couple.

During the course of the meeting president Julia Work received a report from Monna Lee Hanley, co-chairman with Anna Ruth Defenbaugh of the food committee for the jitney lunch, which will be next Wednesday February 10, at noon.

The writer has no idea we are using it in our column. However, we believe that no one of our staff or faculty could write an editorial which would be more timely than this for our last edition (for the present, at least) of our school paper.

A Soldier Writes His Teacher

Lest we have any doubts as to the character of our boys in training or on the fighting fronts we have only to read letters which they write to their families and friends.

This week we received the following letter from one of our young men. It is addressed to our faculty and was enclosed with a note to one of us. It was written a week ago today at Boca Raton Field, Florida. We have changed

Forrest W. Wood Speaks
At Garden Club Meet

Expert Talks
On Supply
Of Lumber

Forrest W. Wood of Wooster, who is doing extension work for the State department of forestry, was guest speaker Friday at the meeting of the Pickaway County Garden club at the home of Mrs. Luther Bower, Beverly road. He was introduced to the club by Robert L. Brehmer.

Mr. Wood, who travels over Ohio helping the farmers in their work of conservation of forestry, marketing their timber and in reforestation, stated in his talk that there was no shortage in timber in spite of the many uses of lumber for camps, glider planes and gun stocks. Rather, he said, there is a shortage of man power to get the timber out. He discussed black walnut, used for gun stocks, told of a factory at Plaquemine where four million blank stocks have been made since the beginning of the war. He said that England has received lumber for their training planes, mostly birch, beech and maple.

He showed slides of various trees, showing how to conserve moisture and protect tree roots. He also showed pictures of the Nursery at Marietta where seeds are started and the method of care of seedlings until they are sold to farmers at a nominal price for replanting.

He showed a variety of trees and gave advice as to the proper place for planting. His final pictures were of scenic spots of Ohio.

Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer had charge of the business meeting, receiving the reports of Mrs. Bower, secretary, and Miss Florence Dunton, treasurer.

Mrs. Reichelderfer appointed Mrs. F. K. Blair, Mrs. Tom O. Gilliland and Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson as the nominating committee to select a slate of new officers for the coming year.

Mrs. M. E. Noggle, Mrs. Clarence McAbbe, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. T. E. Wilson were named by the president at the Victory Garden committee for the club.

Mrs. Noggle and Mr. Brehmer were heard in talks concerning Victory Garden plans which are to be given members of the club later.

Mrs. Bower was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Gilliland, Mrs. Brehmer, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart and Mrs. E. S. Shane.

Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell of Indianapolis and Mrs. Clarence Wolf were guests of the meeting.

Gleaners' Class

Gleaners' Class of the Pontius United Brethren church met Friday at the home of Miss Ethel Brobst, South Pickaway street, and planned the purchase of new song books for the group. Mrs. David Glick, Pickaway township, was a Friday shopping visitor in Circleville.

Mrs. J. N. McKinley of near Darbyville was a Circleville shipper visitor Friday.

Private James T. McCain returned Friday to Westover Field, Massachusetts. He had been visiting Mrs. McCain at the family home on East Main street, and his mother, Mrs. James H. McCain, 364 Town street, since Sunday.

Mrs. Ulin McGhee of near Atlanta spent Friday in Circleville visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pharo Osborne, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Osborne, 425 East Main street.

Captain and Mrs. Lawrence Goeller visited recently with relatives in Lancaster enroute to their home on Beverly road from Rome, New York.

ATLANTA

Mr. and Mrs. George LeValley entertained the following group to a euchre party at their home Thursday evening: Mrs. Nellie Drake and daughter Joanne; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bush; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maddex; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Lamb and daughter, Betty; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Donohoe and daughters Rose Marie and Jane; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Wilkins; Clarence Barker and Edwin Maddex. Game prize winners were Miss Jane Donohoe and Mr. Maddex, high; Mrs. Bush, traveling; and Miss Joanne Drake and Mr. Wilkins, low. The hosts served seasonable refreshments at the conclusion of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Farmer Jr. visited Saturday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Delmar White of Ashville, who is a patient in St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus. Mrs. White underwent an operation for appendicitis at that hospital Friday.

Miss Ann Stinson of Columbus visited over the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Coyt Willis and Dustin Stinson.

Harold Brown of Washington C. H. was a Saturday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Heccox and son Roger Lee.

Miss Irma Lee Brooks spent the week end with Miss Betty Skinner. Mrs. Richard Orr and daughter Thelma also visited with Miss Skinner Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Elsie Gorton of Sunbury visited over the week end at her home here with Mr. Gorton and their nephew, Jack Willis.

Corporal Robert Maddex of the Dodge electric radio school, Valparaiso, Indiana, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maddex and son Edwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drake and daughter Marilyn and sons Dean and Joe were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Drake's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Eckle of Bloomingburg.

Miss Leah Binns and Mrs. Ralph Matthews attended the all-day meeting of the 23rd district, O.E.S., Friday in the Masonic Temple, Washington C. H.

Mrs. William Skinner is staying in Columbus at the present time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Delong.

Miss Helen Hatfield of Harrisburg visited over the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hatfield and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernell Speakman Sr. and son Joe were Friday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Keaton. The dinner was in honor of Mr. Keaton on his birthday anniversary. Mrs. Frank Keaton and daughter, Mary Ann and son George were additional evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Keaton.

HI-Y PUBLISHES PAPER TO SEND
SERVICE ALUMNI

Hi-Y needs your help! We want addresses of Circleville High's alumni in service so that we may send a copy of the "Hi-Y Hometown" to each, free of charge.

Containing important news about the school, its inhabitants and circumstances, stories of the service-men, amusing tidbits and cartoons, the mimeographed paper is intended to bring the boys "closer."

First edition came off the press Friday, others to follow at no particular dates. The staff is composed of Walter Leist, reporter; Robert Schumm, cartoonist; and Florence Drebbach, typist.

So, if you know of such alumni, drop a card today to the Hi-Y Hometown; Box 283; Circleville, Ohio.

ART KNOWLEDGE
NOW IMPORTANT

Upon interviewing Mrs. Brunelle Downing, art instructor of Circleville schools, your reporter found many interesting facts concerning the need for art training in the present day crisis.

Mrs. Downing said that, "Throughout the art course of the school from first grade through High School, the aim of art is stressed. This, namely, is to create a trained hand, seeing eye, and clear thinking. A knowledge of color, design, and factual drawing take first place in the course of study."

"Color is taught so that pupils can distinguish gradations of tone, to know grays, colors, tints and shades. To learn the use of color in camouflage. Through this color study it has been discovered that some pupils are color blind—this defect can be helped if known early enough."

"Accurate measurements, exactness, and neatness are the requisite for good design. These along with the rules for design help in the training of the hand and eye."

"Factual and reproductive drawing trains for concentration and judgment. The training of an artist is to train for practice work and never has the need been so great for the people trained in the above skills."

BOYS BEGIN NEW CLUB IN SCHOOL

Circleville Hi-Y club now has a kid brother in the newly organized Torch club. Composed of boys from the seventh and eighth grades and freshman class, the "Torchies" have the same basic goals as the "Hi-Y-ians."

Wednesday, they elected James Lytle president, Robert McCoy vice-president, Robert Turner secretary, Robert Huffer treasurer and Jack Palm sergeant-at-arms to serve the remainder of the school year.

Already the lads are at work organizing a safety patrol to control traffic at time of school dismissals.

CAST PRACTICES
FOR PRODUCTION
MARCH 4 AND 5

To the interest of many pupils in high school plus the people of Circleville, is the Junior class play: "Dirty Work at the Crossroads".

On visiting the rehearsals one may find Samuel Johnson, dramatic coach, surrounded by his eager cast. Then work begins! "All on the stage for Act One!"

The first few lines are read, everything seems perfect—but that's just to an untrained eye, for Mr. Johnson sees many, many faults in these young thespians. So over and over again the lines must be repeated—perhaps they are still not correct! Mr. Johnson adds a few gestures of his own—depicting the characters from the villain to Little Nell.

"Louder! Please!" "The people will come to hear you, as well as to see you!" "Get that 'dead pan' look off your face!" "More expression!" "Let's give it some umph now." "Hit it!" These are all quotations that one may hear when the "gang" is trying to put their parts "across".

This striving will go on for hours—then, the cast is told to go home. Mr. Johnson lends the advice, "Let's everyone keep going over his part while at home, on the way to school, everywhere not just when you're at rehearsal. Practice makes perfect you know!"

Members of the junior class play cast will leave, tired and somewhat discouraged—but tomorrow, they resolve, I'm not going to miss my cue!

Thus do rehearsals go on until Thursday and Friday evenings, March 4 and 5, when the juniors present "Dirty Work At The Crossroads", or "Tempted, Tried, and True" in the high school auditorium.

Original dates for the play were set for February 3 and 4, but because of registration for the new rationing program it is necessary to change the dates.

SENIORS DEFEAT
JUNIORS TO WIN
BB LEAGUE LEAD

In the main attraction of Thursday night's intramural games the Seniors downed the previously unbeaten Junior team 25 to 15. The Seniors presented a well-balanced team with all five boys scoring almost equally.

In the other contests the Sophomores slaughtered the Freshmen 36 to 1 and the eighth grade won their first game by down the seventh grade 20 to 14. The seventh grade started out all right in their intramural debut by leaving the floor at the half with an 11 to 8 lead. However they couldn't keep the pace in the last half.

Standing of the intramural league for the second round at the present time is Seniors first, Juniors and Sophomores tied for second, Freshman and eighth grade tied for fourth and the seventh grade last.

NUMBER OF GRADUATES IN SERVICE NOW TOTALS 76

To the best of our knowledge, our honor roll has now reached 76. This, of course, includes only those graduates and ex-students beginning with the class of '37. The class of '42 leads with 18 boys. Next in order come 1939, 15; 1941, 13; 1940, 12; 1938, 9; 1937, 6; and 1944, 3. The student body joins the Red and Black staff in wishing them all good luck.

This week we learned of several more alumni.

Aviation Cadet Donald Henry, '37, has been transferred from Ellington field, Texas to Big Springs, Texas, for advanced bombardier training.

Seaman Second Class Clark Martin, '41, is now on the U. S. S. Birmingham.

Private Charles Zangelein, '41, is stationed at Fresno, California. Charles is serving in the air corps.

Several Circleville boys were inducted last week and sent to Fort Thomas, Kentucky. Since we have not learned the address of these boys we shall publish just their names; Jack Beck, '41, Robert Goeller, '42, Dave Hilyard, '40, and Leland Siegwald, '41.

We regret that we shall not be able to publish the names of any more of our alumni. Through this column the journalism class wishes to thank all people who have cooperated with them in making this column possible.

RESERVES SET DATE
FOR ANNUAL DANCE

Thursday afternoon the Senior Girl Reserves announced the date for the annual Junior-Senior Girl Reserve dance. The event will be Saturday, February 13.

This year the dance is not open to all high school. Each member of the Reserves may invite her escort and another couple.

During the course of the meeting president Julia Work received a report from Monna Lee Hanley, co-chairman with Anna Ruth Defenbaugh of the food committee for the jitney lunch, which will be next Wednesday February 10, at noon.

EDITORIAL

A Soldier Writes His Teacher

Lest we have any doubts as to the character of our boys in training or on the fighting fronts we have only to read letters which they write to their families and friends.

This week we received the following letter from one of our young men. It is addressed to our faculty and was enclosed with a note to one of us. It was written a week ago today at Boca Raton Field, Florida. We have changed it only slightly where for military reasons we thought it best to do so.

The writer has no idea we are using it in our column. However, we believe that no one of our staff or faculty could write an editorial which would be more timely than this for our last edition (for the present, at least) of our school paper.

—Margaret A. Mattinson

To all of you,

As I sit here this evening I want to combine a few thoughts mutual to everyone responsible for a valuable training I received in C.H.S. This will no doubt be the last time you shall hear from me until it's all over, over there.

As many of you probably know I am taking special work of a very secret nature which promises me that I will be in the war zone soon. And now to all of you, my sincerest apologies for ever doubting the necessity of the programs you carried out. No one without such a training can be of value to modern and technical warfare. . . .

When I "joined up" there was no idea in my mind of what all I was leaving behind but now that I know, I also know that it's worth fighting for.

When they play "America" my thoughts can't turn to "rocks and temples hills" but, believe me, there are other things that Circleville has which are equally as dear and beautiful to me.

It's worth a fight to know that we can return to see the same friends, all the school kids, old Court and Main, a Saturday evening crowd, Mr. Grand-Girard, the same Court House, the same flowering crops in swell farms, to read of council and city troubles, just as it was and still is—all the little things that would seem unimportant to other millions but which I have grown to hold dear and to respect.

I haven't changed—if I was a kid when you had me—I'm still a kid. But if I was a man I'm still a man. Above all I will always appreciate a Mother who knew the value of schools in the modeling of a good life and always shall I remember all of you who were a part of that sculpturing.

It may take years, maybe only months but we'll do it, for in each of our hearts is a certain consolidation of things we are willing to fight for. You and your projects are part of that in my heart!

Yours as ever,
Paul Turner

E. M. S. MAKES PLANS TO ATTEND THEATRE

At a meeting Thursday evening E. M. S. members discussed plans for the club's annual trip to Columbus to attend some stage performance at the Hartman. Vice president Wanda Turner was chosen to secure information concerning names and dates of plays billed for this Spring.

E. M. S. members who are assisting Miss Gretchen Moeller in the library gave reports on their work. Also during the business meeting the club decided to have a round-table discussion at some future time.

Following the business session Miriam Turner read excerpts from a book written about the United States by the Brazilian novelist, Erico Verissimo. The book is in the form of questions and answers concerning Verissimo's impressions of life in the U. S. A.

WAR CONDITIONS
SPELL FINIS TO SCHOOL PAPER

We regret that this is the last Red and Black to be published in The Circleville Herald until after the war. After 16 years of service we must discontinue.

The Circleville Herald, can no longer handle the extra burden of our school paper. For sixteen years The Herald has published Red and Black for the high school without charge.

School officials have decided not to dissolve the class. Members of the class will continue to write their stories. Some will appear in The Daily Herald's regular news columns.

We do not under estimate the privilege we have enjoyed in having our school news appear at the end of each week in The Herald. We wish to express our deep appreciation to The Herald staff for all courtesies to us. We are also grateful to those pupils who have done typing for us. They are Florence Dresbach, Lavada Gibbs, Monna Lee Hanley, Carolyn Herrmann, Marcella Lannan and Anna Sue Reichelderfer.

And now—"au revoir" and "so long" until we can again come to you each Saturday afternoon. Until then we remain, devoted to journalism—Cleo Davis, Barbara Helwagen, Martha Hulse, Walter Leist, Miriam Turner, Charles Will and David Yates.

STOOGES DEFEAT
HI-Y; OTHER CHS
BB TEAMS WIN

Tuesday evening the Stooze and Hi-Y clubs squared off against each other in the Circleville high school gym. The game was close and fast all the way but the Stooges finally won out 30 to 23. Both squads scored 14 points in the final half, but the Hi-Y couldn't over come the half-time margin of 16 to 9. The Stooge club, paced by David Orr and David Yates with 16 and 11 points respectively, went ahead with the first basket and were never behind.

Bill Ernst and Leon Simms were officials in this contest.

In the first contest the Circleville High Reserves slaughtered the Washington Township Reserves 47 to 15. The Circleville team was paced by Dick Shaw with 15 points and Bill Rutherford with 13 points.

The second contest of the evening pitted Circleville High's varsity against Washington Township's varsity in a fast, high scoring game. The game was close until the last quarter when Circleville went on to win 49 to 40. Simms with 17 points and Heath with 16 points led C. H. S., while Brungs was high for Washington with 16 points.

CONCERT PLANS

C. F. Zangelein, director of Circleville's band, said that plans for a joint concert are under way. Mr. Zangelein explains that he hopes to arrange a concert in which our band and that from a neighboring town will take part. If such arrangements can be made one concert will be here in our auditorium and another at the home of the other band participating. New concert music is here and will be used by the Circleville group if the proposed concert is arranged.

ILLINOIS MEETS BUCKS TONIGHT; HOOSIERS PLAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — Ohio State and Michigan provide opposition for Illinois and Indiana this week end as the two "I" schools lope down the home stretch of the Western Conference basketball race. Illinois meets Ohio State and Michigan plays Indiana tonight and Monday night.

Although nothing like a race can develop so long as Indiana and Illinois remain unbeaten in Big Ten competition, four other teams will try to improve their standings in the league tonight.

Northwestern plays Purdue in the main attraction of a stadium doubleheader. Camp Grant meets De Paul in the other game. The remaining game on the conference schedule pits Minnesota against Chicago in the Maroon fieldhouse and the statisticians are already racking up a victory for the Gophers.

Iowa and Wisconsin play non-conference opponents tonight, Knox opposing the Hawkeyes and Great Lakes invading Madison.

Ohio State with two wins and three losses, is given slight chance of doing anything about knocking Coach Doug Mills' "whiz kids" out of the unbeaten class. Michigan, with only one win in four starts, faces a tough assignment in trying to halt Indiana, especially on the Hoosiers' floor.

TRACK STARS VIE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Stars from all corners of the United States, representing 36 colleges, will shine in the 36th annual Millrose A. A. meet tonight at Madison Square Garden, when world record holders and champs from every recognized track organization in America will run for cinder glory in 24 events. The program will be one of the most interesting ever seen in the garden as Army and Navy oppose each other in the first inter-service school one-mile relay seen on this track; Connie Warmerdam attempts to better his indoor pole vault record of 15 feet 7 1/4 inches; the great Barney Ewell fights it out with Edward Conwell, the New York university freshman who has never been beaten in a sprint race; and Gil Dodds, national AAU indoor and outdoor champ goes to the starting line with his arch-rival, Frank Dixon, of NYU.

Sensible people know that all help for the Allies is help for ourselves.

SALT CREEK AND MONROE TEAMS START TOURNEY

Annual County Cage Meet To Open February 19 On Jackson Floor

Saltcreek and Monroe township basketball teams will pry the lid off the Pickaway county cage tournament when it opens February 19 on the Jackson township court.

Pairings were announced by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

Because the league was not operated this year, teams playing opponents from schools close to home, standings were not kept, so seeding was not conducted to keep stronger teams separated.

The luck of the draw put Pickaway and Ashville considered the county's two strongest teams in separate brackets. However, Darby, another potent quintet, is in the bracket with the Bronchos.

The first round schedule follows:

February 19, 7 p. m.: Saltcreek vs. Monroe.

8 p. m.: Williamsport vs. New Holland.

9 p. m.: Darby vs. Walnut.

10 p. m.: Ashville vs. Jackson.

Second round games will be played February 20.

The schedule:

7 p. m.: winner of Monroe-Saltcreek vs. Washington.

8 p. m.: winner of Williamsport-New Holland vs. Pickaway.

9 p. m.: winner of Darby-Walnut vs. Perry.

10 p. m.: winner of Ashville-Jackson vs. Scioto.

Semi-finals will be played February 26 and the final session on February 27.

High Scoring Features Friday's County Games

Washington township's victory over Williamsport, Darby's thumping of Jackson township, Walnut's return to the win column at Scioto's expense, and Pickaway's victory over New Holland marked Friday's Pickaway county cage games. Saltcreek went out of the county to win from Adelphi.

The Washington lads held a 13-point lead in the fourth quarter when personal fouls took their toll. Williamsport pulling up closer, the game ending 40-35. Brungs paced the winners with 18 points, but Schein topped all scorers with 23 on nine field goals and five foul shots.

Tracy, Darby forward, turned on the heat to pile up 22 points to help his team defeat Jackson, 44-24. The Jackson team was led by Junior Bumgarner who scored 14 points, eight of them foul shots. He missed only one free toss during the evening, getting seven in a row before he missed.

Walnut's Pontius got going to run up 12 points pacing his team's effort in a well earned 25-21 victory over Scioto. McCray added six to the total, Williams topping Scioto lads with 12.

Junior Anderson from Pickaway topped all scorers of the evening when he chalked up eight buckets and eight free tosses against New Holland for 24 points. He received capable support in the scoring column from Young and Dunkle. Pickaway's margin was 58-21. Dennis hit for 14 to help New Holland's total.

Saltcreek's fast forwards, Jones and Strous, counted 24 of their team's 30 points in winning from Adelphi, the Ross county crew getting 24 points. Cottrill, a forward, scored 12 for the losers.

Saltcreek's fast forwards, Jones and Strous, counted 24 of their team's 30 points in winning from Adelphi, the Ross county crew getting 24 points. Cottrill, a forward, scored 12 for the losers.

Jack, looking unstoppable as ever, won every round on the INS card, to take an unanimous ten round verdict over Fritz Zivic, Pittsburgh, before 21,240 fans last night.

Beau didn't score a knockdown but he gave Zivic a thorough shelling.

It was a rousing, rough fight. Both guys slugged it out after the bell on two occasions, going at it for 15 seconds after the gong ended the second and repeating the performance in the sixth.

Zivic fought only in 20 second flurries. He was penalized the eighth round for hitting low and many of Fritz's fans got up on their chairs and booed referee Young Otto lustily at the end of the round.

It was the Beau's round, anyway, being similar to most of the others. Jack piled all over the Fritz and slung leather from every angle throughout. He roughed it with the veteran, scored with a couple of dozen wild rights to the ribs and gave it back with elbow and head each time Zivic tried to bring those weapons into play.

Promoter Jacobs said he would have no announcement on Jack's next foe for a few days but Pep was believed a logical choice.

Willie drew $71,000 against Chalky Wright and $66,000 against Allie Stolz in his last two starts here while Beau attracted a gate of $59,000 against Tippy Larkin and one of $70,291 last night.

These two kids are by far the hottest box office attractions around at the moment and since weight agreements and percentage arguments alone have to be ironed out it is logical to expect the closing of the match early next week.

FAULTY START KEEPS TIGERS BEHIND 8-BALL

Red And Black Unable To Enter Victory Column As Blue Lions Win

BIG RALLY IS FUTILE

CHS Gets 24 Points In Final Period; Score Is 53 To 43

Circleville high Tigers scored 24 points in the last period of their South Central Ohio league court contest Friday evening, more than they had counted in all the first three quarters combined, but they still fell short of tying Washington C. H. in a 53-43 contest.

The Red and Black lost possession of the leather the first five times team members started down the floor with it, double-dribbles, traveling and stepping out of bounds costing the Tigers plenty of points.

It was during this period that the Blue Lions gained an insurmountable lead, running up 19 points against 7. Second quarter gave Washington 10 points against four and the third quarter saw the Red and Black trailing by a wider margin, score at the end of the session being 44-19.

Then the Tigers went to town, giving their followers a thrill in a futile scoring spree that brought a three point minute average.

Work of tall Dave Ellies and Alex Wakman, Blue Lion forwards, whipped the Tigers, the former getting 24 points and the latter 15. Leon Sims, Tiger freshman, who was well muzzled by Joe Tillet part of the game, crashed through for a total of 18 points.

Tiger reserves, continuing to show strength, whipped the Blue Lion reserves 27 to 9, ending the first half on the long end of a 16-0 count. Scoring in the preliminary was scattered although Dick (The Boy) Shaw came through with nine points.

ILLINOIS MEETS BUCKS TONIGHT; HOOSIERS PLAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — Ohio State and Michigan provide opposition for Illinois and Indiana this week end as the two "I" schools loped down the home stretch of the Western Conference basketball race. Illinois meets Ohio State and Michigan plays Indiana tonight and Monday night.

Although nothing like a race can develop so long as Indiana and Illinois remain unbeaten in Big Ten competition, four other teams will try to improve their standings in the league tonight.

Northwestern plays Purdue in the main attraction of a stadium doubleheader. Camp Grant meets De Paul in the other game. The remaining game on the conference schedule pits Minnesota against Chicago in the Maroon fieldhouse and the statisticians are already racking up a victory for the Gophers.

Iowa and Wisconsin play non-conference opponents tonight. Knox invades the Hawkeyes and Great Lakes invading Madison.

Ohio State with two wins and three losses, is given slight chance of doing anything about knocking Coach Doug Mills' "whiz kids" out of the unbeaten class. Michigan, with only one win in four starts, faces a tough assignment in trying to halt Indiana, especially on the Hoosiers' floor.

TRACK STARS VIE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Stars from all corners of the United States, representing 36 colleges, will shine in the 36th annual Millrose A. A. meet tonight at Madison Square Garden, when world record holders and champs from every recognized track organization in America will run for cinder glory in 24 events. The program will be one of the most interesting ever seen in the garden as Army and Navy oppose each other in the first inter-service school one-mile relay seen on this track; Connie Warmerdam attempts to better his indoor pole vault record of 15 feet 7 1/4 inches; the great Barney Ewell fights it out with Edward Conwell, the New York university freshman who has never been beaten in a sprint race; and Gil Dadds, national AAU indoor and outdoor champ goes to the starting line with his arch-rival, Frank Dixon, of NYU.

Sensible people know that all help for the Allies is help for ourselves.

SALT CREEK AND MONROE TEAMS START TOURNEY

Annual County Cage Meet To Open February 19 On Jackson Floor

Saltcreek and Monroe township basketball teams will pry the lid off the Pickaway county cage tournament when it opens February 19 on the Jackson township court.

Pairings were announced by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

Because the league was not operated this year, teams playing opponents from schools close to home, standings were not kept, so seeding was not conducted to keep stronger teams separated.

The luck of the draw put Pickaway and Ashville considered the county's two strongest teams in separate brackets. However, Darby, another potent quintet, is in the bracket with the Bronchos.

The first round schedule follows:

February 19, 7 p. m.: Saltcreek vs. Monroe.

8 p. m.: Williamsport vs. New Holland.

9 p. m.: Darby vs. Walnut.

10 p. m.: Ashville vs. Jackson.

Second round games will be played February 20.

The schedule:

7 p. m.: winner of Monroe-Saltcreek vs. Washington.

8 p. m.: winner of Williamsport-New Holland vs. Pickaway.

9 p. m.: winner of Darby-Walnut vs. Perry.

10 p. m.: winner of Ashville-Jackson vs. Scioto.

Semi-finals will be played February 26 and the final session on February 27.

Washington township's victory over Williamsport, Darby's thumping of Jackson township, Walnut's return to the win column at Scioto's expense, and Pickaway's victory over New Holland marked Friday's Pickaway county cage games. Saltcreek went out of the county to win from Adelphi.

The Washington lads held a 13-point lead in the fourth quarter when personal fouls took their toll, Williamsport pulling up closer, the game ending 40-35. Brungs paced the winners with 18 points, but Schein topped all scorers with 23 on nine field goals and five foul shots.

Tracy, Darby forward, turned on the heat to pile up 22 points to help his team defeat Jackson, 44-24. The Jackson team was led by Junior Bumgarner who scored 14 points, eight of them foul shots. He missed only one free toss during the evening, getting seven in a row before he missed.

Walnut's Pontius got going to run up 12 points pacing his team's effort in a well earned 25-21 victory over Scioto. McCray added six to the total, Williams topping Scioto lads with 12.

Junior Anderson from Pickaway topped all scorers of the evening when he chalked up eight buckets and eight free tosses against New Holland for 24 points. He received capable support in the scoring column from Young and Dunkle. Pickaway's margin was 55-21. Dennis hit for 14 to help New Holland's total.

Saltcreek's fast forwards, Jones and Strous, counted 24 of their team's 30 points in winning from Adelphi, the Ross county crew getting 24 points. Cottrill, a forward, scored 12 for the losers.

FAULTY START KEEPS TIGERS BEHIND 8-BALL

Red And Black Unable To Enter Victory Column As Blue Lions Win

BIG RALLY IS FUTILE

CHS Gets 24 Points In Final Period; Score Is 53 To 43

Circleville high Tigers scored 24 points in the last period of their South Central Ohio league court contest Friday evening, more than they had counted in all the first three quarters combined, but they still fell short of tying Washington C. H. in a 53-43 contest.

The Red and Black lost possession of the leather the first five times team members started down the floor with it, double-dribbles, traveling and stepping out of bounds costing the Tigers plenty of points.

It was during this period that the Blue Lions gained an insurmountable lead, running up 19 points against 7. Second quarter gave Washington 10 points against four and the third quarter saw the Red and Black trailing by a wider margin, score at the end of the session being 44-19.

Then the Tigers went to town, giving their followers a thrill in a futile scoring spree that brought a three point a minute average.

New Air Raid Warning Signals Effective February 17

STEADY WHISTLE BLAST MEANS ENEMY NEARING

Defense Units To Take Posts And Communities Are To Dim Out

SECOND WARNING SET

Series Of Blasts To Black Out All Lights, Send Citizens To Shelter Rooms

Revision of the air raid warning signal for Circleville and Pickaway county folk as well as for all Ohioans was announced Saturday, the system being declared as uniform for all cities.

T. E. Wilson, executive director of the Circleville and Pickaway county Defense Councils, said that the first public audible warning will consist of a steady blast lasting for several minutes. This signal will mean "probability of enemy air raid—enemy planes appear to be headed in your direction—get ready."

Workers to Mobilize

On this signal Civilian Defense forces will mobilize immediately. Lights in homes, business houses and industrial firm will be blacked out. War production and transportation will continue provided certain precaution steps have been taken.

The actual air raid alarm will consist of a series of short blasts on whistles. This signal will mean "enemy planes are practically overhead." Pedestrians must take shelter and all traffic, with exception of emergency vehicles, will be stopped.

Differing from present regulations, the "all-clear" signal under the new system will not be audible. It will be indicated by turning on street lights which have been off during the raid and by telephone with warden posts.

Faster Blackouts

The warning system is designed to permit faster blackouts and mobilization of defense personnel, greater civilian protection and a minimum time loss and interference with essential war production and transportation.

The new regulations, already received by local and county Defense Councils, will become effective February 17. The changes were recommended by the army following a survey on the Atlantic seaboard during the last year by the War Department and Office of Civilian Defense.

Heretofore, a series of short blasts heralded "lights out," and a sustained blast announced the "all clear."

Information concerning a statewide blackout to be held soon will be issued at a meeting next Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall, Columbus, which local Defense Council officials plan to attend.

Circleville has undergone two successful dim out tests and the county area has conducted one dim out.

LOCAL GIRL TO STUDY WELDING IN NYA SCHOOL

Miss Mary Ann Brown, 141 York street, has gone to Chillicothe to start training in the National Youth Administration's war production program. Miss Brown will study welding. She has been assigned to the Mount Logan Girls' Resident Center.

Girls between 16 and 25 years of age are eligible for NYA training with pay, plus their room, board, medical and dental care and transportation to and from the center at the beginning and end of their training period.

Eight hour shifts are worked five days a week. After four weeks of training, on recommendation of their foreman, adept girls may transfer to the Miami Resident Center at Dayton where they will be given training in airplane mechanics at Patterson field. Civil service appointments with base pay at $1,500 a year are available.

Enrollees wishing to remain at Mount Logan Center may do so. They will be assigned to U. S. Employment Service offices for placement in private industry doing war work.

FLAMES DESTROY OLD GRAIN MILL AT DARBYVILLE

An old grain mill at Darbyville, a landmark in the community for many years, was destroyed by fire Friday night, flames being discovered a few minutes before 8 o'clock.

Caused of the flames was not learned. Firemen of the Circleville department were told that there was no heat in the old frame building and that no one had been in it during the day, so far as villagers could ascertain.

The mill was owned by Tom Rere of Columbus and was leased by Ernest McDowell for storage. Mr. McDowell told fireman that five tons of hay and six tons of straw were lost in the flames.

This is Lousy, But True Tale About County

This is a lousy story. It's about lice, and, if you read it through which you probably will not, you will likely be scratching your head before you have finished it.

Lice, head lice, pediculi and nits were the chief topics discussed at the meeting of the Pickaway county board of health Friday afternoon by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, health commissioner.

The lice situation in some parts of the county is becoming a little itchy, the healthier warned the board.

At four schools in the county in the last week all pupils were examined for head lice. Quite a number were found to have lice, the healthier said, and letters were sent to parents of each giving them instructions for killing lice and removing nits.

"It is unfortunate," the healthier said, "that children from better homes often get head lice from other children at school. We are recommending that all parents keep a close watch of their children's heads and if lice or nits are found go after them in the proper manner."

"It is no disgrace to have head lice, but it is a disgrace to keep them and ignore them," the health commissioner said.

Applications of larkspur lotion will kill all lice on the head, if used according to directions on the bottle.

The nits are very difficult to remove. The best way to do this is to wash the head in warm diluted vinegar before going to bed. The next day the nits can usually be removed with a fine-toothed comb. If the comb will not remove them, the slow process of removing each nit from the hair with the fingers will have to be resorted to.

When head lice or nits are found on a school child every member of the family should be carefully examined. Head lice travel from one person to another, and no one is exempt.

The commissioner reported that the county is again free from scarlet fever, four cases reported in January having recovered and returned to school. Seven schools were visited during the month and physical examinations were made in each.

SHARE-THE-RIDE PLANS WEIGHED AT LOCAL MEET

Distribution of share-the-ride information, including blanks which residents of Circleville will be asked to sign guaranteeing that they will cooperate in the important program, will be started immediately in the county seat by sector leaders serving under Mrs. C. G. Shulze, chairman of the women's division of the Civilian Defense Council.

About 20 sector leaders met Friday evening in offices of the Circleville Herald to receive information concerning the share-the-ride plan. They heard a discussion of the program and its importance by Lawrence J. Johnson, share-the-ride chairman appointed by Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

Mrs. Shulze designated Mrs. William D. Radcliff, Miss Mary McCrady and Miss Ruth Stout as zone leaders to supervise work of the sector leaders.

The assignment is the second given to women of the local Defense Council's organization, the first being information concerning the important share-the-meat program.

FIVE MORE SOLDIERS ASSIGNED TO CAMPS

Announcement of assignment of five more Circleville and Pickaway county draftees was made Saturday by the Fort Thomas, Ky., classification center. All men assigned were included in the January quota of the local Selective Service board.

Assigned were: Ralph A. Schumm of Circleville to the 406th military police escort guard company at Camp McCain, Miss.

Ralph T. Barr of Circleville to air force command, chemical warfare service, Sheppard field, Texas.

Silas R. Phillips, Williamsport, to air force command, quartermaster, Keesler field, Biloxi, Miss.

William D. Campbell, Ashville, to air force command, engineer, Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Howard J. Rodgers, Circleville, to 37th coast artillery brigade, Hollywood Turf Club, Inglewood, Cal.

FARM BUREAU DIRECTORS MEET SATURDAY NIGHT

Newly-named board of directors of the Pickaway county Farm Bureau will meet Saturday night in Farm Bureau offices for election of officers for the next year.

The new board was named at the annual Farm Bureau-Livestock Cooperative meeting last Friday.

GASOLINE RECIPROCITY

Lugging his golf clubs to the Chevy Chase Club on the bus the other day went Argentina's Ambassador Felipe Espil. With him on the bus went his minister-counselor Garcia Arias. As diplomats they are not subjected to gas rationing, but they believe in saving gas anyway.

Among other golfers at the club was British Counselor of Embassy Hoyer Millar. He also had used the bus. Later, in a limousine, arrived Uruguay's Ambassador Juan Carlos Blanco, good friend of the USA, but relatively new in Washington.

Ambassador Blanco looked a bit sheepish at seeing few cars at the Chevy Chase Club.

"How did you come here?" he asked the British Counselor.

"On the bus."

"How did you come?" he asked the Argentine Counselor.

"On the bus."

"And how did you come?" he asked Argentine Ambassador Espil.

"I came on the bus, too."

"Well," said the Uruguayan Ambassador, "I came by car."

"Down in my country," he continued with a twinkle in his eye, "all the Americans ride around in big limousines, while we walk. So up here I drive around in a limousine. I believe in Cordell Hull's reciprocity."

As he left the club, however, he said: "Next time, I come by bus, too."

FREEZING AUTOS

Many anti-freeze mixtures being sold today are nothing much but salt water. This prevents freezing, but also causes corrosion.

The Bureau of Standards has made tests of the anti-freeze preparations now on the market, and finds that many are merely solutions of salt, plus chemicals intended to prevent corrosion. But these chemicals, though they may work in laboratories, do not work in the automobile, and the mixture does considerable harm.

Best way to test an anti-freeze mixture, according to Bureau of Standards, is to put a little in an iron frying pan (not aluminum) and boil it until the liquid has evaporated. If there is a residue of brine, you know you have been sold salt water—in a fancy can at a fancy price.

One reliable anti-freeze these days is alcohol—if you can get it.

MEDICAL RED TAPE

Certain heads are falling in the Surgeon General's Office of the Army because of delays in the acquisition of medical and surgical supplies for the armed forces.

Papers went from the Surgeon General's Office to the Army and Navy Munitions Board to authorize purchase of surgical equipment, drugs, bandages, etc. The papers got lost. The Surgeon General's Office blamed the Army-Navy Munitions Board, and the ANMB blamed the SGO.

Investigation disclosed the papers had cleared the ANMB in three days, had returned to the SGO and had lain there for three weeks unattended.

The Great Salt plains of Oklahoma are said to be the residuum of a great, prehistoric inland sea from which the water drained to form the present salt plain.

MAYOR FAVORS NON-POLITICAL UTILITY CONTROL

Mayor Ben H. Gordon expressed wholehearted support Saturday for a measure introduced in the Ohio house of representatives which would permit appointment of a non-political "Committee of Management" to be set up for operation of municipally-owned utilities.

The bill was offered by Rep. R. H. Longenecker, Republican of Wood county.

Mayor Gordon said that under the act a three-member committee would be in charge of all municipal plants. The committee would be bi-partisan with members serving for six years, although the first three appointments would be for two, four and six years, respectively.

At present all municipal utilities must be under supervision of service directors.

The mayor said that it has long been his stand that municipal plants should be kept out of politics. "If the city should buy the water plant as council proposes," the mayor said, "it is my hope that such a Committee of Management" can be established.

Passage of the Longenecker measure would permit such an appointment.

MAIL CARRIERS COOPERATE ON DRAFT NOTICES

You can't fool Uncle Sam's mail carriers. They are the first persons in Pickaway county, except draft board members and the office staff, to know when a Circleville or Pickaway county man is being ordered to report for induction into the armed forces.

Because it is so imperative that draft induction notices be delivered immediately or be returned to the board with equal speed, the office circles the figure five on the outside of each induction envelope with a red crayon. Mail should be returned to the board in five days if not delivered.

When postmen see that red mark on a Selective Service envelope they know that the addressee is being ordered into service.

An induction order is the only type of mail the draft office force marks in that manner.

FUNERAL SUNDAY FOR HARVEY ALLEN MOWERY

Funeral services for Harvey Allen Mowery, 82, who died Friday at the home of his son, Willis, north of Tarlton, will be conducted Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Tarlton Methodist church, the Rev. S. N. Root officiating. Burial will be in Tarlton cemetery by the Defenbaugh funeral home.

Mr. Mowery was a resident of Saltcreek township his entire life. He was a former superintendent of the Tarlton Sunday school and was a church trustee.

The body will be at the Defenbaugh funeral home Saturday evening and will be removed to Tarlton Sunday morning.

Survivors include two sons, Willis, where he died, and Charles of Pickaway township. His wife, Sarah E. Meyers, died about 15 years ago.

New Air Raid Warning Signals Effective February 17

STEADY WHISTLE BLAST MEANS ENEMY NEARING

Defense Units To Take Posts And Communities Are To Dim Out

SECOND WARNING SET

Series Of Blasts To Black Out All Lights, Send Citizens To Shelter Rooms

Revision of the air raid warning signal for Circleville and Pickaway county folk as well as for all Ohioans was announced Saturday, the system being declared as uniform for all cities.

T. E. Wilson, executive director of the Circleville and Pickaway county Defense Councils, said that the first public audible warning will consist of a steady blast lasting for several minutes. This signal will mean "probability of enemy air raid—enemy planes appear to be headed in your direction—get ready."

Workers to Mobilize

On this signal Civilian Defense forces will mobilize immediately. Lights in homes, business houses and industrial firm will be blacked out. War production and transportation will continue provided certain precaution steps have been taken.

The actual air raid alarm will consist of a series of short blasts on whistles. This signal will mean "enemy planes are practically overhead." Pedestrians must take shelter and all traffic, with exception of emergency vehicles, will be stopped.

Differing from present regulations, the "all-clear" signal under the new system will not be audible. It will be indicated by turning on street lights which have been off during the raid and by telephone with warden posts.

Faster Blackouts

The warning system is designed to permit faster blackouts and mobilization of defense personnel, greater civilian protection and a minimum time loss and interference with essential war production and transportation.

The new regulations, already received by local and county Defense Councils, will become effective February 17. The changes were recommended by the army following a survey on the Atlantic seaboard during the last year by the War Department and Office of Civilian Defense.

Heretofore, a series of short blasts heralded "lights out," and a sustained blast announced the "all clear."

Information concerning a statewide blackout to be held soon will be issued at a meeting next Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall, Columbus, which local Defense Council officials plan to attend.

Circleville has undergone two successful dim out tests and the county area has conducted one dim out.

G. Shulze, chairman of the women's division of the Civilian Defense Council.

About 20 sector leaders met Friday evening in offices of the Circleville Herald to receive information concerning the share-the-ride plan. They heard a discussion of the program and its importance by Lawrence J. Johnson, share-the-ride chairman appointed by Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

Mrs. Shulze designated Mrs. William D. Radcliff, Miss Mary McCrady and Miss Ruth Stout as zone leaders to supervise work of the sector leaders.

The assignment is the second given to women of the local Defense Council's organization, the first being information concerning the important share-the-meat program.

Certain heads are falling in the Surgeon General's Office of the Army because of delays in the acquisition of medical and surgical supplies for the armed forces.

Papers went from the Surgeon General's Office to the Army and Navy Munitions Board to authorize purchase of surgical equipment, drugs, bandages, etc. The papers got lost. The Surgeon General's Office blamed the Army-Navy Munitions Board, and the ANMB blamed the SGO.

Investigation disclosed the papers had cleared the ANMB in three days, had returned to the SGO and had lain there for three weeks unattended.

The Great Salt plains of Oklahoma are said to be the residuum of a great, prehistoric inland sea from which the water drained to form the present salt plain.

MAYOR FAVORS NON-POLITICAL UTILITY CONTROL

Mayor Ben H. Gordon expressed wholehearted support Saturday for a measure introduced in the Ohio house of representatives which would permit appointment of a non-political "Committee of Management" to be set up for operation of municipally-owned utilities.

The bill was offered by Rep. R. H. Longenecker, Republican of Wood county.

Mayor Gordon said that under the act a three-member committee would be in charge of all municipal plants. The committee would be bi-partisan with members serving for six years, although the first three appointments would be for two, four and six years, respectively.

At present all municipal utilities must be under supervision of service directors.

The mayor said that it has long been his stand that municipal plants should be kept out of politics. "If the city should buy the water plant as council proposes," the mayor said, "it is my hope that such a Committee of Management" can be established.

Passage of the Longenecker measure would permit such an appointment.

MAIL CARRIERS COOPERATE ON DRAFT NOTICES

You can't fool Uncle Sam's mail carriers. They are the first persons in Pickaway county, except draft board members and the office staff, to know when a Circleville or Pickaway county man is being ordered to report for induction into the armed forces.

Because it is so imperative that draft induction notices be delivered immediately or be returned to the board with equal speed, the office force circles the figure five on the outside of each induction envelope with a red crayon. Mail should be returned to the board in five days if not delivered.

When postmen see that red mark on a Selective Service envelope they know that the addressee is being ordered into service.

An induction order is the only type of mail the draft office force marks in that manner.

FUNERAL SUNDAY FOR HARVEY ALLEN MOWERY

Funeral services for Harvey Allen Mowery, 82, who died Friday at the home of his son, Willis, north of Tarlton, will be conducted Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Tarlton Methodist church, the Rev. S. N. Root officiating. Burial will be in Tarlton cemetery by the Defenbaugh funeral home.

Mr. Mowery was a resident of Saltcreek township his entire life. He was a former superintendent of the Tarlton Sunday school and was a church trustee.

The body will be at the Defenbaugh funeral home Saturday evening and will be removed to Tarlton Sunday morning.

Survivors include two sons, Willis, where he died, and Charles of Pickaway township. His wife, Sarah E. Meyers, died about 15 years ago.
